Pepperdine is a Christian university committed to the highest standards of academic excellence and Christian values, where students are strengthened for lives of purpose, service, and leadership.

As a Christian university, Pepperdine affirms:

That God is

That God is revealed uniquely in Christ

That the educational process may not, with impunity, be divorced from the divine process

That the student, as a person of infinite dignity, is the heart of the educational enterprise

That the quality of student life is a valid concern of the University

That truth, having nothing to fear from investigation, should be pursued relentlessly in every discipline

That spiritual commitment, tolerating no excuse for mediocrity, demands the highest standards of academic excellence

That freedom, whether spiritual, intellectual, or economic, is indivisible

That knowledge calls, ultimately, for a life of service

President’s Message

I would venture that the benefits of an excellent education are among the few constants in this century of change and challenge. And at Pepperdine University, I feel confident in asserting that the benefit of a faith-inspired education, one which affirms the importance of quality, student-centered teaching and the value of your own spiritual journey, will prepare you abundantly for the career and life to which you aspire.

Pepperdine has a glorious history and a founder who believed not just in the young people who arrived and enrolled in 1937 in South Los Angeles, but in you. Beyond our nearly 8,000 students in five colleges, our community embraces more than 80,000 alumni around the globe, international campuses that will transform your life and worldview in the course of a semester or academic year, national-championship athletics, and a heart for service that beats devotedly on six continents through selfless acts and outstretched hands.

As you consider the part you will play in society and the career you hope to pursue, weigh carefully your college choice and the investment a university like Pepperdine is determined to make in you. It is our responsibility to afford you every opportunity to master the skills of critical thinking and discover your calling, with access to faculty—distinguished in their disciplines and professions—in an environment that is equipped for learning; indeed, one that is enabling, nurturing, and safe.

Welcome to Pepperdine, a distinctively different university. We pledge to prepare you well for a life of purpose, service, and leadership, if you will let us.

Andrew K. Benton
President
Pepperdine’s Malibu campus is the headquarters for the University.
History of the University

Pepperdine University is an independent, medium-sized university enrolling approximately 7,700 students in five colleges and schools. Seaver College, the School of Law, the Graduate School of Education and Psychology, the Graziadio School of Business and Management, and the School of Public Policy are located on the University’s 830-acre campus overlooking the Pacific Ocean in Malibu. Courses are taught in Malibu; at four graduate campuses in Southern California; and at international campuses in Germany, England, Italy, Switzerland, China, and Argentina.

The University was founded in 1937 by Mr. George Pepperdine, a Christian businessman who started the Western Auto Supply Company. For the first 30 years of its life, the institution was a small, mostly undergraduate college. University status was achieved in 1970 as the institution added graduate and professional schools. In 1972, the University opened its new campus at Malibu.

Pepperdine University is religiously affiliated with the Churches of Christ, of which Mr. Pepperdine was a lifelong member. Faculty, administrators, and members of the Board of Regents represent many religious backgrounds, and students of all races and faiths are welcomed. It is the purpose of Pepperdine University to pursue the very highest academic standards within a context that celebrates and extends the spiritual and ethical ideals of the Christian faith.

Colleges and Schools of the University

The School of Public Policy enrolls approximately 100 students and offers a Master of Public Policy (MPP) degree built on a distinctive philosophy of nurturing leaders to use the tools of analysis and policy design to effect successful implementation and real change. This requires critical insights balanced with personal moral certainties that only a broad exposure to great ideas, courageous thinkers, and extraordinary leaders can encourage. It prepares graduates for careers as leaders and seeks also to strengthen the institutions which lie between the federal government and the individual, including the family, religious organizations, volunteer associations, local and regional government, and nonprofit organizations. Joint degree programs include the MPP/JD and MPP/MDR degrees in conjunction with the School of Law and the MPP/MBA degree in conjunction with the Graziadio School of Business and Management. The Davenport Institute, the research and special program division of the School of Public Policy, is dedicated to addressing current issues through major conferences, seminars, and published research.

The School of Law provides an excellent legal education within a values-centered context. One of the most rapidly developing law schools in the country, it is fully approved by the American Bar Association and holds membership in the Association of American Law Schools. It has a limited enrollment of about 635 full-time students who come from across the nation and around the world to study law in a unique, supportive environment. Among its degree offerings are the LLM in Dispute Resolution and the Master of Dispute Resolution (MDR), administered by the School of Law’s internationally acclaimed Straus Institute for Dispute Resolution. Its joint degree programs include the JD/MBA, JD/MPP, JD/MDiv, JD/MDR, and MDR/MPP. It has a fall semester and summer session in London, where students may study international law in one of Europe’s most exciting cities. The School of Law also is home to the Herb and Elinor Nootbaar Institute on Law, Religion, and Ethics and the Geoffrey H. Palmer Center for Entrepreneurship and the Law.

Seaver College is the University’s residential college of letters, arts, and sciences, enrolling approximately 3,000 undergraduate and graduate students who are expected to maintain the highest standards of academic excellence and personal conduct. An interdisciplinary curriculum requires each student to develop as a broadly educated person. General studies courses emphasize knowledge in a number of areas, including communication, humanities, fine arts, international studies, natural science, religion, and social science. Specialization in a major field gives students the opportunity to develop depth of knowledge as they pursue goals consistent with individual interests and skills. The bachelor’s degree is offered in 43 fields of study. The master’s degree is offered in seven areas.

The Graziadio School of Business and Management is one of the nation’s largest graduate business schools accredited by the Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business (AACSB International) and enrolls approximately 2,000 students in its full- and part-time programs. Founded in 1969, the school is named for its benefactor, the cofounder, chairman, and CEO of Imperial Bancorp, the late George L. Graziadio. Its mission is to develop values-centered leaders and advance responsible business practice. Degrees granted by the Graziadio School include the Master of Business Administration (MBA) for full-time students, working professionals, and high-level executives; the International Master of Business Administration (IMBA); the Master of Science in Organization Development (MSOD); the Master of Science in Management and Leadership (MSML); the Master of Science in Global Business (MSGB); the Master of Science in Applied Finance (MSAF); and the undergraduate Bachelor of Science in Management (BSM). Special programs include a joint BSM and MBA program; joint degrees with Pepperdine University’s School of Law (JD/MBA), School of Public Policy (MBA/MPP), and Seaver College (BS/MBA or BS/IMBA); and certificate executive education programs that can be customized to meet an organization’s specific learning needs. Degree programs are offered at the Graziadio School’s headquarters located in West Los Angeles; the Drescher Graduate Campus in Malibu; and additional campuses located throughout Southern California including Encino, Irvine, and Westlake Village. The Executive MBA program also is available in Northern California.
The Graduate School of Education and Psychology enrolls approximately 1,650 students. With its main headquarters located at the West Los Angeles Graduate Campus, the graduate school also offers select programs at graduate campuses in Malibu, Irvine, Encino, and Westlake Village, as well as online. The Graduate School of Education and Psychology offers a total of 10 master’s and doctoral programs in education and psychology, all of which are founded on the theoretical understanding of service through leadership. The education programs prepare teachers to serve as leaders in technological innovation and collaborative learning environments as well as train administrators to create vision and manage change in business, health, and other social service professions. Students in the psychology programs are educated in the current and emerging human service fields, including clinical psychology and marriage and family therapy. Emphasis is placed on the practitioner-scholar model of learning, highlighted by discovery, scholarship, research, and clinical application. In conjunction with an excellent professional education, students are provided with personal attention in a Christian, values-centered context.
Heroes Garden is located at one of the highest points on the Malibu campus.
The Santa Monica mountains serve as a beautiful backdrop to the Malibu campus.
Dean’s Message

To understand immediately the caliber of student for whom the Pepperdine School of Public Policy has been designed, it is helpful to think of three levels of commitment to which various candidates aspire. Some will seek to become skilled public policy analysts, whose work is critical to government, private business, and nonprofit organizations.

Then, a second group from within the first is composed of those students who hope to combine these analytic tools with the organizational talents that leverage their work through the activities of other people, and their work is significant.

But then, from both of these groups, there will be some who have the strength of moral purpose and clearly defined values who will emerge to serve as true leaders. These are the candidates who are able to inspire and design organizations that create value for those they serve and make meaning for those they lead.

It is this third group I have described—those who aspire to leadership roles—for whom the School of Public Policy curriculum at Pepperdine has been carefully crafted by academic, government, and business leaders with decades of experience and demonstrated leadership skills themselves. In addition to time in the classroom with an outstanding faculty, these students will also be exposed to inspiring and inspired leaders from all walks of life.

At Pepperdine, serious and searching students can find roots that will nourish them through a lifetime of service, and they will develop wings to reach beyond what they might otherwise have dared to accomplish. These are the special people for whom the public policy program has been designed and who seem to thrive best in its rare atmosphere.

School of Public Policy
Accreditation

Pepperdine University is accredited by the Accreditation Commission for Senior Colleges and Universities of the Western Association of Schools and Colleges (WASC), 985 Atlantic Avenue, Suite 100, Alameda, CA 94501, (510) 748-9001.

Purpose and Philosophy

Pepperdine University’s School of Public Policy takes a fresh, innovative, and student-centered approach to the increasingly important interdisciplinary field of public policy. Pepperdine’s program is built on a distinctive philosophy that impacts the study and application of public policy in several important respects:

• Public policy is not limited to the study of government solutions, but is broadened to embrace a full range of community-based and free-market approaches to public policy challenges.

• Effective public policy solutions are rooted in the classic literature of history, philosophy, and economics and are guided by moral and ethical principles best captured in the lives of great leaders.

• The teaching of public policy goes beyond the theoretical survey of problems, highlighting policy applications that have proven to be effective.

• Many policy challenges are best resolved at regional and local levels. Southern California and Los Angeles provide an ideal laboratory in which to study such issues.

Whatever one’s political views, those who shape public policy today are confronted by challenges of unprecedented magnitude. In no field is there greater need for the moral, ethical, and spiritual paradigm that the founding mission and enduring philosophy of Pepperdine University encourages. This strong focus on the student’s character as the heart of the educational enterprise is especially fitted to nurture the next generation of policy leaders.

The Leadership Challenge

It is the goal of Pepperdine’s School of Public Policy to comprehend, address, and in some instances influence the world’s crucial public policy questions with well-educated practitioners, analysts, and leaders. Through forums and conferences, the school engages professionals from other nations to share foreign policy ideas with Malibu-based students and faculty.

With its strategic location on the Pacific Rim, Pepperdine is positioned to stage timely and vital seminars on such subjects as foreign trade, economic development, and social and environmental issues for executives from agencies around the world.
Faculty

The faculty of the School of Public Policy is drawn from leading academics and practitioners in the various fields of public policy. Faculty members are carefully chosen for their high academic qualifications, their real-world orientation, and their philosophical congruence with the values of the school. The school’s view of teaching and scholarship integrates instruction with research; focuses on the student; and makes informed, practical applications at all levels of planning and decision making.

A distinctive feature of the school is the use of distinguished public policy scholars and practitioners to augment its own full-time faculty and the faculty of the University’s four other schools. As is the practice at Pepperdine’s other schools, many of the leading practitioners in the country enjoy opportunities to teach and lecture at the school on short-term appointments. Their contributions add significantly to the richness of the student experience as well as to the anticipated outreach of the school to its wider community. For example, visiting faculty are composed of scholars from leading institutions, foundations, and think tanks. This significant use of visiting scholars and practitioners, more widely accepted in a teaching professional school than in a research university setting, contributes to the distinctiveness of the Pepperdine program.

Ted McAllister is the Edward L. Gaylord Chair and Associate Professor of Public Policy at the School of Public Policy.
Chairs and Professorships

Robert and Katheryn Dockson Endowed Professorship
Robert Dockson, a University Life Regent and long-time business leader, and his wife, Katheryn, provided the school’s first endowed professorship.

Edward L. Gaylord Endowed Chair in Public Policy
In 1994, Edward Gaylord and the Sarah Scaife Foundation provided gifts to Pepperdine to create the first endowed chair of the School of Public Policy.

Ronald Reagan Endowed Professorship
Flora Laney Thornton, who served both as a former University regent and Life Regent, provided an endowed professorship in honor of President Ronald Reagan.

William E. Simon Distinguished Visiting Professorship
The William E. Simon Distinguished Visiting Professorship is funded by the William E. Simon Foundation, giving the school the opportunity to invite a series of nationally recognized individuals to be in residence, teach, and devote significant time as resident mentors to student scholars.

Davenport Institute
The Davenport Institute for Public Policy, founded in 1996, is the primary platform from which the School of Public Policy engages in the current marketplace of ideas. Through its fellows, conferences, publications, and distinguished lecture series, the Davenport Institute draws on the unique spirit of the academic program to advance and elevate current policy debates.

In addition to its policy contributions, the Davenport Institute has afforded unique opportunities for graduate students to engage leading thinkers and policy makers in a close setting. Students consistently participate in project planning and research development, frequently serving as research assistants for institute fellows. Access to permanent research fellows and conference participants has constituted a unique policy laboratory that has brought a high degree of practical, real-world experience to their academic training.

In 2000, the institute was named in honor of David Davenport, the University’s sixth president, and an endowment of $3 million was established.

Policy Platform (Guest Speaker Program)
Throughout Pepperdine’s 73-year history, scores of noteworthy public- and private-sector officials have visited the University campus and addressed both social and academic gatherings. The School of Public Policy aims to unite students frequently with public policy advisors and governmental luminaries responsible for shaping policy within their respective spheres of influence, thus becoming a viable partner in the policy community.

Each year students interact with numerous visiting scholars and policy leaders. Students have had intimate conversations with such leaders as William Bennett, author; Jeb Bush, 43rd governor of the state of Florida; Kim Campbell, former Canadian prime minister; Dan Coats, U.S. ambassador; Beth Fischer, professor, University of Pittsburgh; Dennis Prager, author, lecturer, teacher, and theologian with a nationally syndicated radio talk show; Pierre-Richard Prosper, former U.S. ambassador-at-large for war crimes issues; Richard Riordan, former mayor of Los Angeles; the Honorable William E. Simon, Sr., former U.S. Secretary of the Treasury; William E. Simon, Jr., former Republican gubernatorial candidate for California and co-founder, William E. Simon and Sons; and other scholars from leading institutions, agencies, and think tanks.

Campus

The School of Public Policy is located on Pepperdine University’s Drescher Graduate Campus overlooking the Pacific Ocean in Malibu, California. The magnificent 830-acre campus, most of which remains in a natural state, enjoys a commanding view of the winding seashore and the rugged beauty of the adjacent Santa Monica mountains.

Though Malibu enjoys clean air and dramatic mountain and ocean scenery, it lies in Los Angeles County, about an hour from downtown Los Angeles and the Los Angeles International Airport. As a world center for trade, recreation, culture, industry, and education, Los Angeles offers students the advantages of a vast metropolitan area.

The Malibu campus facility includes libraries, bookstores, cafeterias, and offices for faculty as well as student services.

The University’s Olympic-sized Raleigh Runnels Memorial Pool, Firestone Fieldhouse, Ralphs-Straus Tennis Center, and other recreational facilities are available for student use during specified times.

Student Life and Services

Academic and Career Counseling Services

Individuals who are considering applying to the program should contact the assistant dean for student services for general information. Enrolled students are provided academic and career counseling through the faculty and staff. The goal of career services is to equip students with the tools to manage their own career planning efforts.

Alumni Association

Graduates of the School of Public Policy become members of the University Alumni Association and have an opportunity to take part in University as well as school alumni activities. Alumni of the School of Public Policy are eligible to receive the following: lifetime e-mail forwarding, access to the Pepperdine Alumni Network Web site, bookstore discounts, library privileges, insurance, and discount tickets for athletic and Center for the Arts events. Information on these services is available at http://www.pepperdine.edu/alumni/.
Athletic Facilities

Students possessing a valid Pepperdine student ID card may use the fully equipped athletic facilities during specified times. Facilities include tennis courts; an Olympic-sized swimming pool; a track and field; and a gym, which contains treadmills, ellipticals, stationary bikes, stairmasters, and both machine-based and free-standing weight-lifting equipment.

Bookstore

A bookstore operated by Follett College Stores is maintained on the Drescher Graduate Campus in the Center for Learning and Technology. School of Public Policy students may purchase textbooks and materials at this location. Textbooks also may be ordered online at http://www.pepperdine-drescher.bkstr.com. The bookstore can be contacted at (310) 506-8569. Hours are Monday through Thursday, 11 a.m. to 6 p.m., and Friday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Center for the Arts

Smothers Theatre, Raitt Recital Hall, and Lindhurst Theatre are host to internationally acclaimed performers as well as Pepperdine student productions. Pepperdine students are admitted to events at a greatly reduced student ticket price. The Frederick R. Weisman Museum of Art offers exhibitions throughout the year, which feature an international sampling of art and design. Admission to the museum is free.

Central Receiving

Central Receiving is part of Mail Services and receives all ground and freight shipments for the University and students living on campus. Students receiving packages via these methods will be sent a notice that will be placed in their mailbox. Packages may be picked up in Mail Services on the Facilities Management and Planning pad.

Students may ship packages via express mail by taking their packages to Central Receiving or Mail Services located on the Facilities Management and Planning pad.

Community Counseling Clinics

Pepperdine University’s Graduate School of Education and Psychology maintains three on-campus counseling centers at the West Los Angeles, Encino, and Irvine Graduate Campuses. Each clinic provides comprehensive and affordable psychological services to the general community and Pepperdine University students. Psychological services offered include psychological assessment; vocational evaluation and counseling; individual, couple, and family therapy; and educational therapy. Services are provided by Pepperdine doctoral and master’s students under the supervision of licensed psychologists or licensed marriage and family therapists. The clinic staff is committed to providing high-quality, individualized counseling within a supportive and accepting environment.
For more information about clinic services or to make an initial appointment, call any of the following locations:

- Encino (818) 501-1678
- Irvine (949) 223-2570
- West Los Angeles (310) 568-5752

Computer Store

The Computer Store serves as a discount computer store for University faculty, students, and staff. Through established partnerships with select vendors, the Computer Store offers special pricing on laptops, software, and discounted cellular phone service subscriptions. Visit the Computer Store online at http://services.pepperdine.edu/computerstore.

Counseling Center

The Counseling Center promotes mental health in the Pepperdine community. Academic success, social relationships, physical health, and spiritual well-being are often affected by mental health issues. Students are encouraged to be mindful of this important component of self-care.

All currently enrolled Pepperdine students are eligible to seek free confidential counseling services at the Counseling Center. Services address day-to-day stressors, such as time management, relationships, and sleep difficulties. The professionals on staff also are prepared to respond to more serious mental health concerns, including eating disorders, substance abuse, anxiety, and depression.

The Counseling Center operates primarily on a brief therapy model. Although exceptions can be made, most issues are expected to be resolved in no more than 10 sessions. If it is determined that a higher level of support or care is necessary, the center staff will assist students in finding a provider in the community, keeping in mind special needs, transportation, and insurance considerations.

Beyond counseling, the center staff also offers consultation for persons who want to assist someone else. If a student, parent, or faculty member would like to know how to respond to a student with mental health concerns, the center staff will help to identify an appropriate response, including, if necessary, how to suggest the student seek professional services.

The Counseling Center employs a consulting psychiatrist to provide mental health medication management. There is a minimal charge for psychiatric services.

Call (310) 506-4210 to make a counseling appointment or to speak with Counseling Center staff. The Counseling Center is located on Main Campus in the Tyler Campus Center, Suite 270. For after-hours emergency mental health situations, please call Public Safety at (310) 506-4441. For more information, visit the Counseling Center Web site at http://services.pepperdine.edu/counselingcenter.
Dining Services

Food and beverages are provided for sale through Sodexo Campus Services in the Margaret M. Rockwell Student Dining Center on the Drescher Graduate Campus; in the Edward and Jill Di Loreto Dining Room at the School of Law; and from the WAVES Cafe, Nature’s Edge, La Brea Bakery, and Jamba Juice in the Tyler Campus Center. Pepperdine's dining program is designed around an a la carte pricing system using points. Points are accessed using the student's Pepperdine ID card, which acts as a debit card for food.

A variety of meal plan options, including a 625-point plan for commuters and residents living in on-campus apartments, are charged against the student’s account and can be purchased through the Office of Housing and Residence Life. Students are required to show their identification cards when purchasing food on campus. Students may purchase meals for friends and relatives but must be present to purchase the meals. Residents who use all of their points are able to buy additional points at a discounted rate of 2 for 1 through Pepperdine Dining Services. 2 for 1 points are only good for the duration of the semester that they are purchased. Points obtained through the meal plans will roll over between the fall and spring semester if the student continues enrollment. All points not used at the end of the spring semester will be deleted, without refund, from the student’s card.

Students who are not on the meal plan may take advantage of the convenience of dining services. Waves Cash may be added to any Pepperdine identification card in any amount by visiting OneStop. Points can be used in all Sodexo dining locations on campus. Major credit cards also are accepted at the Drescher campus, School of Law, and WAVES Cafe dining centers. For more information, please visit http://services.pepperdine.edu/housing/faq/mealplans.htm. Dining courtesy is expected at all times in every facility. Students disregarding such courtesy are subject to disciplinary action including, but not limited to, the loss of dining privileges.

Cafe Fresca

This grab-and-go facility in the Center for Communication and Business features sandwiches, salads, snacks, coffee, and cold drinks.

HAWC Coffee House

The HAWC Coffee House is located on the second floor of Howard A. White Center (HAWC) and features gourmet coffee, espresso drinks, pizza, salads, sandwiches, baked goods, and convenience store items. It also provides a central meeting place for students.

Jamba Juice

Located in the Sandbar Student Lounge on the second floor of Tyler Campus Center, this facility features 20 varieties of custom smoothies.

La Brea Bakery

Located in the dining room of the WAVES Cafe, this facility features espresso beverages, artisan pastries, paninis and sandwiches, salads, and desserts.
Nature’s Edge
Located adjacent to the WAVES Cafe, this food marche will feature fresh, locally grown produce presented farmer’s market style, organic snacks and beverages, and ready-to-heat convenience meals.

E-mail
Every Pepperdine University student is provided with a Pepperdine e-mail account upon enrollment, ending with “@pepperdine.edu.” The University and School of Public Policy administration depend upon these e-mail accounts to disseminate critical announcements and important news. Students will be held responsible for all information sent to this account by faculty and/or administration, and sending an e-mail to this account will at all times serve as official notification regardless of whether the student reads a specific e-mail or otherwise maintains the account. Not having read a specific e-mail or not reporting technical problems with an account will not be considered a justifiable reason for nullifying this notice provision. Students are required to check their accounts regularly and to report any problems.

Health Insurance
Graduate students are required to carry health insurance. The University requires healthcare coverage for the purpose of limiting undue financial and academic stress related to illnesses during the academic year. A health policy will assist in meeting the financial burden of not only common illnesses treated at the Student Health Center or at a private physician’s office, but also illnesses and accidents involving more extensive care.

The University Insurance Committee has contracted with an insurance broker, Wells Fargo Insurance Services. This group researched insurance options and presented The Aetna Life Insurance Co. as the optimal coverage for Pepperdine’s student body. Wells Fargo facilitates the group policy with Aetna Life and provides customer service to students for all insurance matters. A nominal administrative fee is added to the premium to cover University insurance-related services.

The University insurance policy through Aetna Life has been contracted to include the lowest premium for the student’s benefit; however, a student may purchase any policy that has comparable coverage to the University policy. A supplemental insurance plan through Aetna Life also is available for students who have private insurance coverage. This plan aids in meeting deductibles and providing medical care for those with HMO or PPO plans.

Students with questions regarding the University’s student health insurance plan should call the University’s insurance broker, Wells Fargo Insurance Services, at (800) 853-5899. Students may also access student insurance information online at http://studentinsurance.wellsfargo.com/~pepperdine.

Housing
Graduate students may reside in private housing or in University apartments on campus. In the Drescher Graduate Campus apartments, each resident has his or her own bedroom in a four-bedroom apartment. Additional information is available at http://services.pepperdine.edu/housing/.

In order to assist students in their search for off-campus housing, the Housing and Residence Life Web site offers a number of off-campus housing resources. For more information about off-campus housing, please visit http://services.pepperdine.edu/housing/offcampus/.

Immunization Requirement

Graduate students need to update their immunization status. Although the following immunizations are not required for graduate school entry, they are strongly recommended by the American College Health Association and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention: tetanus/diphtheria (booster within 10 years); measles, mumps, and rubella (MMR); hepatitis B; meningitis (Menactra) for those students under the age of 25; and a TB skin test (PPD) within the past year. For more information regarding these immunizations, students should contact their health provider or the Student Health Center at (310) 506-4316, option 3. Students may also visit the Web site at http://services.pepperdine.edu/healthcenter.

Information for Students with Disabilities

Pepperdine University is committed to complying with all mandates set forth in Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act and the Americans with Disabilities Act. Students with disabilities requesting accommodations should contact the University’s Disability Services Office (DSO) before their academic program begins. Upon verification of the student’s disability, the DSO will work with each student on a case-by-case basis to determine appropriate accommodations while maintaining academic integrity of the courses. Students should expect a two-week time frame in which the documentation and accommodation request will be reviewed. If the documentation is incomplete and/or does not meet the DSO guidelines, students will be required to submit complete documentation before accommodations may be granted.

Students who are registered with the DSO will receive accommodation letters to provide faculty verifying their accommodations. Students must request accommodations each semester through the submission of a completed Service Request Form.

Inquiries should be addressed to the director of disability services at (310) 506-6500. Visit the DSO Web site at http://www.pepperdine.edu/disabilityservices/ for further information regarding documentation guidelines, office forms, and resources for students.

Information Technology

The Information Technology (IT) department provides a full range of technology services for University students. Each of the University’s campuses features modern classrooms with digital projection and wireless Internet access as well as multiple general-use computer labs that provide wired and wireless connectivity, fee-based black-and-white and color printing, and photocopying.

Students can call the IT Anytime Support Desk for technology support at (310) 506-HELP (4357) or (800) 767-8623 (toll free in U.S.), 24 hours a day, 365 days a year. In addition, IT staff are available at each campus to provide technology assistance.

Students are required to abide by the Computer and Network Responsible Usage Policy. Details are included in the “Regulations and Legal Notices” section of this catalog and are published on the Information Technology Web site. More information about all of the Information Technology services is available at http://services.pepperdine.edu/it/.

Libraries

The Pepperdine community is served by four libraries and a small reference collection at the Encino Graduate Campus, as well as the School of Law Library on the Malibu campus. University libraries include Payson Library and the Drescher Graduate Campus Library in Malibu, the West Los Angeles Graduate Campus Library, and the Irvine Graduate Campus Library. Library materials are listed in the online catalog, which is accessible at each library location and online at http://library.pepperdine.edu. All circulating items in the Pepperdine libraries are available to all students and alumni and may be requested through the catalog or interlibrary loan for pickup at the Malibu or graduate campuses. For current Pepperdine students, a variety of electronic resources, including databases, journal articles, books, dissertations, and reference items, is available online. Reference librarians are available for research assistance during posted hours at Payson Library, Drescher Graduate Campus Library, West Los Angeles Graduate Campus Library, and Irvine Graduate Campus Library. An e-mail, chat, and text reference service, Ask-A-Librarian, is also available online. Additional information about University libraries may be found on the Web site at http://library.pepperdine.edu/.

Mail Services

Pepperdine Mail Services is open to the University community from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. The retail window is open from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday. Pepperdine Malibu Mail Services and Automation Services as well as Central Receiving are located on the Facilities Management and Planning pad. West Los Angeles Graduate Campus Mail Services is located in Room 105.

Students may mail letters, packages, or express packages or may purchase stamps at the Mail Services retail window. Limited mailing supplies also are available for purchase at the retail window.

All mail for the Drescher Graduate Campus student mailboxes will be sorted to the individual mailboxes in the afternoon. Packages that are too large for the mailbox will have a notification slip placed in the mailbox and can be picked up in Mail Services on the Facilities Management and Planning pad.
All incoming mail must have a student name and mailbox number included in the address. Mail Services reserves the right to open and/or return any mail not displaying a student name. Any mail that comes in without a box number must be looked up before being processed. To ensure prompt delivery to each mailbox, all student mail should be addressed in the following manner:

Student Name
Pepperdine University
24255 Pacific Coast Hwy (student’s four-digit box number)
Malibu, CA 90263-(student’s four-digit box number)

Student mailboxes are for University business or personal mail only. No commercial business may be conducted using the Pepperdine mailbox address.

Students will forfeit their mailboxes if they leave the University except in the case of emergency. Mail Services must be notified when students leave for the summer in order for their mailboxes to be retained. Students must fill out a mail forwarding form and submit it to Mail Services if they are graduating or leaving for the summer. Only first-class mail, periodicals, and parcels of obvious value will be forwarded.

Office of International Student Services

The Office of International Student Services (OISS) issues the Form I-20, Certificate of Eligibility for Nonimmigrant (F-1) Student Status, to international students who have been granted admission to Pepperdine University. International students registering at Pepperdine for the first time must report to the OISS on the Pepperdine campus in Malibu to meet with a designated school official for compliance with government regulations. The OISS provides seminars and publications on immigration, employment, tax requirements, and other matters related to the maintenance of legal nonimmigrant status in the United States. For more information, call (310) 506-4246.

Health and accident insurance coverage is mandatory for international students. For more information about health services, call the University’s insurance broker, Wells Fargo Insurance Services, at (800) 853-5899.

Parking Information

Parking on the Malibu Campus is free, but valid parking permits are required and their display mandated at all times when on campus. Parking permits can be obtained online. Students should visit Pepperdine University’s Department of Public Safety Web site to register their vehicles. All vehicles must be registered through the Department of Public Safety. Additional information is available on the Web site at http://www.pepperdine.edu/publicsafety/parking/vehiclereg.htm.

The California Vehicle Code, Section 21113(a) empowers University Regents to establish parking and traffic regulations on University property. Unless otherwise provided for by these regulations, all of the provisions of the California Vehicle Code relating to traffic upon the highways shall be applicable on Pepperdine University property. Pepperdine University parking and traffic regulations are adopted by the Board of Regents and are available for review in the Office of the President and the Department of Public Safety.

Shuttle Services

The University provides free on-campus shuttle service. Please consult the Web site for detailed shuttle schedules at http://services.pepperdine.edu/businessservices/transit/schedule.htm.

Blue Route
The Blue Route circles the campus clockwise and leaves the main lot every 15 minutes beginning at 8 a.m. and ending at 5:15 p.m.

Orange Route
The Orange Route circles the campus counter-clockwise with two shuttles. The first Orange Route shuttle leaves the main lot every 20 minutes beginning at 8 a.m. and ending at 10:30 p.m. The second Orange Route shuttle circles the campus counter-clockwise and leaves the main lot every 20 minutes beginning at 8:10 a.m. and ending at 4 p.m.

Student Health Center

The Student Health Center is located on the northwest corner of the Rho parking lot on Towers Road. The Student Health Center provides a wide variety of services similar to any family practice office, including care for respiratory problems, sports medicine, injuries, women’s and men’s health issues, dermatology, etc. The Student Health Center also administers immunizations and travel medicine. Information reported here is confidential and kept as part of the health record in the Student Health Center. The Health Information Portability and Accountability Act (HIPAA) protects disclosure of a student’s health information.

The purpose of the Student Health Center is to promote the good health of students through diagnosis of illness and injury, treatment, education, and consultation. It operates on the model of an ambulatory health clinic during regular business hours. The staff of the health center includes board-certified physicians, certified physician assistants, registered nurses, a certified massage therapist, and administrative staff. Students accessing care will be charged at the time of the first visit, and follow-up visits are charged based on the complexity of the service provided.

Additional charges may include labs, prescriptions, and specialty services. All charges are made as low as possible, encouraging full access to healthcare for all students. The fees will be charged to the student’s account or can be paid at the time of service. A receipt will be provided to the patient at each visit. The patient can submit the receipt to his or her insurance company for reimbursement consideration.

The Student Health Center offers a toll-free confidential nursing advice line 24 hours a day, PEP-RN on call, staffed by registered nurses available at (800) 413-0848. Students may call PEP-RN when they have health concerns and need advice on where to seek care.
The Student Health Center sees patients by appointment Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Appointments may be made by calling (310) 506-4316, option 3. In case of an on-campus medical emergency, students should call Public Safety at (310) 506-4441.

Student Organizations
Eleven national fraternities and sororities, 16 honorary societies, and more than 60 additional student organizations have local chapters on the Pepperdine University campus.

Substance Abuse Counseling
Free and confidential assessment and treatment services are available to all graduate students who are experiencing problems related to alcohol and/or drug use. For some students, these problems stem from their own misuse of alcohol and other drugs, while others might be experiencing the challenges of dealing with a friend or family member who has an alcohol or drug problem. A counselor can help students understand the causes of the problem; the relationship of alcohol and drug use to other underlying issues (for example, anxiety, depression, or relationship problems); and what options are available at Pepperdine and within the community to support their goals. To learn more about counseling related to drug and alcohol issues, students should call the Counseling Center at (310) 506-4210 or visit the Web site at http://services.pepperdine.edu/counselingcenter and click on the link “Alcohol and Other Drugs.”

Tech Central
Tech Central is Pepperdine University’s student support center, offering total technology support for students. Tech Central is located on the second floor of Payson Library on the Malibu campus. Visit Tech Central online at http://services.pepperdine.edu/techcentral.

Hours of operation are Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., and Saturday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tech Central may be contacted at (310) 506-4811 or by e-mail at Tech.Central@pepperdine.edu.

Third-Party Vendors
In order to best serve its students, the University engages various third-party vendors to provide, for example, food, beverage, bookstore, and other services for the University community. Depending upon the terms of the vendor agreements, some of these relationships may in certain circumstances provide an opportunity for the University to receive return payments from a vendor. As a good steward of its limited resources, the University periodically reviews these relationships to ensure that students’ interests continue to be well served and that appropriate quality levels are maintained.

Travel Agency
Pepperdine University in conjunction with Corniche Travel offers a complete travel department located in the Tyler Campus Center, Office of International Programs. The travel department offers air, hotel, ground transportation, group and meeting planning, and exclusive value-added vacation specials. Hours of operation are 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday. Any registered student may use the service and make travel arrangements in person, by telephone at (310) 506-4562, or by e-mail at corniche@pepperdine.edu.

University Card Services

Students are able to use their student identification cards for the purchase of photocopies or food and beverages from the dining centers at the Drescher Graduate Campus, School of Law, and Tyler Campus Center, in addition to Jamba Juice, La Brea Bakery, Nature's Edge, and the Coffee House located in the Howard A. White Center. There is no charge for a student’s first identification card. The fee to replace lost or stolen identification cards is $15. Students may get a replacement identification card at OneStop, located on the second floor of the Thornton Administrative Center. The replacement fee can be charged to the student account.
ACADEMIC PROGRAMS OF THE SCHOOL OF PUBLIC POLICY

The Drescher Graduate Campus occupies one of the highest points on Pepperdine’s Malibu campus and offers a commanding view of the Pacific Ocean.
Graduation is held annually in the spring at Alumni Park overlooking the Pacific Ocean.
The Master of Public Policy (MPP) requires 64 units of coursework, four 4-unit courses each semester for two academic years (four semesters). The first year is composed primarily of core courses and provides a foundation for the student's specialization courses, most of which are taken in the second year.

Workshop, Projects, and Internships

In addition to regular credit courses, each student is required to complete two non-credit experiences, which are critical to developing leadership in real-world situations. These begin with a mandatory Orientation Workshop at the beginning of the program, followed by a mandatory Summer Internship between the first and second years. Finally, a Capstone project will be developed during the final semester’s Policy Research Seminar (Capstone) for credit, which may be presented to a board of academic and real-world practitioners. This experience also permits another assessment of individual progress in developing leadership skills and personal values. This major policy proposal with a member of the faculty or a committee of faculty and board of visitors is designed to provide focus and fuel for successful undertakings and to assist students with career planning and placement.

Orientation Workshop

The Orientation Workshop is an intensive workshop that is mandatory for all new students and held the week before formal classes begin over several 8- to 12-hour days. It provides an opportunity for reflection on personal values and life goals. It also provides practical and intensive exercises in developing skills in team building, which students can use in learning teams during the program as well as in their eventual positions of leadership beyond their academic experience. The intended outcome is a cohesive learning cohort of students who will spend the next two years together, assisting each other in developing their skills to their fullest potential through collaborative learning and mutual encouragement in spiritual and social as well as intellectual growth.

Summer Internship

The required 240-hour Summer Internship should be selected in an agency related to the student’s area of specialization and must be completed prior to the first semester of the second year. Such agencies may be local, state, or federal government; nonprofit organizations; or an international experience in a non-U.S. setting to prepare for foreign service after graduation. The internship should provide a perspective on how the methods and theories learned in the cases studied in the classroom may find practical expression in non-textbook and complex real-life settings. No credit will be given for work done prior to entering the program.
Internship Procedures and Requirements

It is the student’s responsibility to follow the internship procedures and requirements shown below as well as to ultimately secure an internship. Students should monitor their “To Do” items in the WaveNet student portal to track progress toward completion.

1. Each student is expected to meet with the manager of career services to determine interest in a field of study within the first month of the fall semester of the student’s first year at the School of Public Policy. The manager of career services will assist the student in résumé writing, gaining contacts and leads for internships, and other career-related concerns.

2. Each student is responsible for securing his or her internship and completing and submitting the Internship Agreement Form prior to starting the internship. The student must get approval from the manager of career services, and both parties must agree that this is a graduate-level, substantive internship involving work related to policy formulation and analysis. Then, the student completes an Internship Agreement Form, which is an agreement with the organization offering the internship and requires signatures of the student and the supervisor from the organization where the internship has been secured. This form must be submitted to the manager of career services prior to the end of the spring semester of the first year of study at the School of Public Policy.

3. Each student must complete and submit the Internship Release of Liability Form. The Internship Release of Liability Form must be submitted prior to the start of the internship. This form must be completed and received by the manager of career services prior to the end of the spring semester of the first year of study at the School of Public Policy. The student must fulfill a minimum of 240 hours with the approved organization. The hours cannot be divided among multiple organizations.

4. Each student will be assigned a faculty advisor. Once the Internship Agreement Form is submitted and approved by the manager of career services, the student will be assigned a faculty advisor and will be enrolled in MPP 699 during the summer semester between his or her first and second years at the School of Public Policy. This is a zero-unit class, graded as credit (“CR”) or no credit (“NC”).

5. Each student is required to complete 240 hours of internship work and submit the Internship Completion and Evaluation Form. After completing 240 hours of an approved internship, the student submits the Internship Completion and Evaluation Form prior to the end of the fall semester of the second year of study at the School of Public Policy. This form requests detailed information on the duties of the position and recommendations for future interns as well as reflections on the lessons learned during the student’s internship experience. Part of the information on the form is input into the School of Public Policy internship database, which will be shared with future interns. The remaining information is kept confidential and will be reviewed only by the manager of career services and the student’s faculty advisor. The curriculum requires that the internship be completed in the summer between the student’s first and second year. If a student is unable to do so, the student must meet with the manager of career services to discuss options, gain approval, and ensure that a grade of incomplete ("I") is processed and the student is reenrolled for the fall term.

Failure to complete an internship, submit the required forms and reports on time, or meet with the faculty advisor prior to the end of the fall semester of the second year of study at the School of Public Policy will result in a grade of no credit ("NC") appearing on the student’s transcript for MPP 699. This will cause the student to default the graduation requirements which will affect eligibility to graduate. If a student receives a grade of “I” and the work is not completed in the specified period of time, the “I” will default to an “F,” which will be factored into the student’s grade point average and affect eligibility to graduate.

6. Each student must complete and submit the Supervisor Internship Evaluation Report. The student should contact the internship supervisor of the agency for which the student interned to complete and submit the Supervisor Internship Evaluation Report. This form must be completed, signed, and submitted by the supervisor and delivered to the manager of career services by December 15. This document is an independent verification of the student’s internship experience.

7. Each student must meet with the assigned faculty advisor to discuss questions 7–9 on the Internship Completion and Evaluation Form. The student will be assigned a faculty advisor upon completion of step 3. The student is responsible for setting up the meeting with his or her faculty advisor. The last day to meet with a faculty advisor is six weeks prior to graduation.

8. Upon completion of steps 1–7 and the student having satisfactorily fulfilled the internship requirement, a grade of “CR” (credit) will be submitted to the Office of Student Information and Services by the faculty advisor.

Policy Research Seminar (Capstone)

The Policy Research Seminar (Capstone) in the final semester will develop and present a major public policy program design and implementation plan using a real situation in an actual agency, either global, national, state, or local. Students will develop a clearly focused mission, a strategic plan for the undertaking, and an implementation plan that acknowledges various interest groups that must “buy in” for the project to be successful. This will require personnel planning, a budget plan, and a clear method for securing approvals from all interested parties whose “ownership” is critical for its success. The results may be presented to a board of visitors including academics and real-world agency leaders. Students will be expected to be able to identify, verbalize, and experience in an authentic way clearly stated personal values as well as technical expertise.
Specialized Tracks

Students will choose an area of special interest for their second year and take one course as an introduction to the field at the end of their first year and before their Summer Internship. Students will declare their specialization prior to registration in the second semester of the first year. Specialization courses will be offered in

- Public Policy and Economics.
- Public Policy and American Politics.
- Public Policy and International Relations.
- State and Local Policy.

The International Relations specialty may focus more specifically on one area such as Latin America, the Middle East, or the Pacific Basin depending on interest among the current student cohort.

Continuous scrutiny and development of the program may result in adjustments in the content, sequencing, and coverage of courses in the required curriculum during future academic years.

Course Requirements for the Master of Public Policy

The first year is comprised almost entirely of a core curriculum that is required for all students. It is designed to provide a foundation that is steeped in Pepperdine’s unique perspective that the formation, evaluation, and practice of public policy is a sacred calling devoted to service at the most profound level. The core curriculum also intends to provide an introduction to the tools necessary for analyzing public policy, its impact on individuals and society, and methods for evaluating the costs and benefits of various policies and programs.

Much of the first year’s curriculum sets up a dialog across courses between the conservative but morally neutral law and economics tradition on the one hand and, on the other, the morally challenging ethical issues whose relationship to specific policies and programs is often not concrete and specific or, at most, left vague and ambiguous.

School of Public Policy
Double Specialization Option*

Students in good standing, free of academic probation, in the Master of Public Policy degree program may, at their option, choose to double specialize in any two of the following School of Public Policy tracks:

- Public Policy and Economics.
- Public Policy and American Politics.
- Public Policy and International Relations.
- State and Local Policy.

Students interested in double specializing should plan to complete the following requirements:

1. Students must complete all School of Public Policy core courses (28 units).
2. Students must complete the Summer Internship (0 units).
3. Students must take three courses in one track (12 units).
4. Students must take three courses in another track (12 units).
5. Students must take at least one course in each of the remaining two tracks (12 units).

*Students must be in good standing; must be free of probation; and are subject to all policies, procedures, and requirements as outlined in the School of Public Policy academic catalog. The School of Public Policy cannot guarantee that a significant number of courses in the particular tracks in which a student wishes to double specialize will be offered.

Sara Thompson (MPP ’09) presents her Policy Research Seminar (Capstone) project on education policy.
Course Descriptions for the Master of Public Policy

CORE COURSES

This course discusses concepts, systems, and institutions that participate in the development of public policy, both from historical and contemporary perspectives. Included is an attempt to lay the groundwork for the moral consequences of public action—how, for instance, government distribution of benefits alters incentives and values. It also considers policy development and implementation by the private sector of business, labor, and nonprofit associations as well as the church, the family, and educational institutions, which have played such an important role in American society.

This course also introduces tools that are useful in the formal analysis of collective action, including a consideration of market failures, imperfect competition, and cost-benefit analysis. The larger purpose of this course, as well as MPP 601, is to consider how the ultimate objectives of public policy can best be met through a proper balance between constraints and personal freedom.

MPP 601. Ethical Dimensions of Public Policy: Great Books and Great Ideas (4)
This course involves a survey of the “great books,” which provide a philosophical, historical, and moral foundation for policy initiatives. It is intended to be a touchstone for returning again and again to the great themes that recognize the permanent, tested principles that provide the roots of American order, including a belief in God and the recognition that men and women are sacred beings created with a transcendent end. The course will expose students to great leaders who have fashioned the public good over the centuries.

Specific books will vary from year to year and professor to professor, but the course will organize its readings around such central themes as limited government (why the founders wanted this, how it has changed, why voters are conflicted about it); capitalism (why it works, its relationship to democracy, what criticisms are made of it, how they may be dealt with); the moral consequences of public action; and the moral principles involved in the tension between moral autonomy and moral dependence. This course, together with MPP 600, acts as an introduction and foundation for the significant themes with which students are challenged to grapple in subsequent courses.

MPP 602. Applied Economic Analysis of Public Policy I (4)
This course is designed to help students learn to apply important economic principles to domestic and global policy issues. Students will develop skills in the application of economic reasoning to policy problems. Included are such key principles and concepts as consumer choice, the production decisions of firms, the function of prices in allocating scarce resources, the pricing of public goods, the role and behavior of markets, market failure, and externalities.
MPP 603. Applied Research Methods in Public Policy (4)
This course emphasizes the application of research methodology and statistical techniques for evaluating the performance of public policy decisions. Students should be able to understand and apply basic research design methodology and interpret results. The course provides both a theoretical foundation and practical applications of these methods, including variance, regression, cost-benefit analysis, survey sampling, and other tools of evaluation. Included is an introduction to the rich sources of data available on the Internet.

MPP 604. Political, Organizational, and Strategic Aspects of Public Policy Analysis (4)
This course focuses on the basic tasks of public leaders to analyze the political feasibility of alternate policy responses, gain and maintain among affected constituencies a mandate to act, and design and implement strategies for accomplishing the goals and objectives of the organization. Attention is given to authorizing bodies, political superiors, interest groups including the press, and matching one's organizational abilities to leadership demands. The importance of resource allocation and budgeting also is stressed. Entrepreneurship and reengineering in government and in nonprofit agencies will be topics of serious concern. This course also will consider the higher ethical and moral standard expected of leaders and the role of such conduct on strategic leadership.

MPP 605. Applied Economic Analysis of Public Policy II (4)
A continuation of Applied Economic Analysis of Public Policy I, this course shares the objective of applying economic principles to current policy issues. The course focuses on the tools of both microeconomic analysis and macroeconomic analysis and the role of government in the economy. Topics covered include the public sector, the role and effect of fiscal and monetary policy, and the global economy. Prerequisite: MPP 602 Applied Economic Analysis of Public Policy I.

Introductory Course in Specialization (4)
Students will declare an area of special interest for their second year and take one course as an introduction to the field at the end of their first year and before their Summer Internship. Specialization courses will be offered in

- Public Policy and Economics.
- Public Policy and American Politics.
- Public Policy and International Relations.
- State and Local Policy.

The International Relations specialty may focus more specifically on one area such as Latin America, the Middle East, or the Pacific Basin depending on interest among the current student cohort.

MPP 607. Policy Research Seminar (Capstone) (4)
This course, taken in the final semester of the program, is designed to provide an integrative experience by developing an actual program or policy implementation in cooperation with a local, state, national, or international agency that has been given a specific policy directive. Consideration will be given to evaluation and measurement of the expected outcome of the policy, personnel, budgetary needs and impact, and the development of support among public and private parties whose cooperation is necessary for success. To develop leadership skills further, this project will be completed individually or as a team exercise, which will be reviewed and evaluated by faculty and may be evaluated by agency officials and key representatives of constituencies affected by the policy.

MPP 609. Directed Studies (1–4)

The School of Public Policy may offer with approval directed studies adapted to an individual student’s needs. Directed studies will require independent writing and research, focusing on projects related to a student’s specialization, and frequent reports and conferences with a School of Public Policy full-time faculty advisor. Course credit may be offered; units will vary depending on level of participation (1–4 units). Consent of the dean is required for directed study. Written proposals must be submitted prior to close of registration, and the student must be in good standing, free of probation.

MPP 699. Summer Internship (CR/NC)

The required 240-hour Summer Internship must be selected in an agency related to the student’s area of specialization and must be completed prior to the first semester of the second year. Such agencies may be local, state, or federal government; nonprofit organizations; or an international experience in a non-U.S. setting to prepare for foreign service after graduation. The internship should provide a perspective on how the methods and theories learned in the cases studied in the classroom may find practical expression in non-textbook and complex real-life settings.

PUBLIC POLICY AND ECONOMICS

MPP 620. Global Economics (4)

This course is the study of specific policies that affect global economic relationships and the interdependencies that emerge between countries as a result of international trade. The history of commercial policies is tied to outcomes in order to inform future policy directions. Included is a consideration of the role of foreign exchange markets and the impact of globalization on currency markets.

MPP 621. Environmental and Natural Resource Economics (4)

This course uses economic analysis to explain the underlying behavioral causes of environmental and natural resource problems and to evaluate the policy responses to them. Topics covered include air and water pollution, toxic substances, the allocation of renewable and exhaustible resources, and sustainable development.

MPP 622. Applied Econometrics (4)

This course is designed to teach students basic skills in empirical economics. This course provides the student with a set of statistical tools that are necessary for empirical research in economics. Prerequisite: MPP 603 Applied Research Methods in Public Policy.
MPP 623. Law and Economics (4)
This course methodically develops the tools that illustrate an economic approach to evaluating law and public policy issues. Using this analysis, a theoretical foundation will be laid that attempts to determine how, under a given set of explicit assumptions, a legal rule or policy accomplishes specific social goals. Tort, contract, and criminal law and policies will be examined as well as the litigation process.

MPP 624. Urban and Regional Economics (4)
This is a survey of a broad range of policy and theoretical issues that emerge when economic analysis is applied to an urban setting. This course covers the determinants of regional and metropolitan growth. Topics include urbanization and urban growth, housing markets, location decisions of households and firms, transportation, urban labor markets, and the local public sector.

MPP 625. Public Finance and Public Choice (4)
This course emphasizes the role of government in a market economy. Alternative justifications for government intervention are discussed. The principles and effects of spending programs (especially social insurance and health), taxation, deficit financing, federal credit programs, and properties of public choice mechanisms will be covered. Specific topics will include food stamps and unemployment insurance; medical care; Social Security; the distribution of income; income transfer programs; education; and the tax system (federal, sales, and corporate).

MPP 626. Labor Economics (4)
This is a study of the supply and demand for labor. It includes an analysis of government, union, and other constraints on a competitive system of wage determination. Theories of labor supply, labor demand, and human capital investment are considered as well as related public policy issues such as minimum wage laws, income maintenance, immigration, discrimination, and the operation of labor markets in the macroeconomy.

MPP 627. Seminar in Economic Policies (Selected Topics) (4)
This course will consider different economic issues from year to year. It will involve students in cutting-edge policies while they are in the formative stage and consider tradeoffs between the common good and the rights of the individual as well as the relationship with state and federal governments and the private sector. Upon the approval of the faculty of the School of Public Policy, an upper-division or graduate-level course from one of the other schools at Pepperdine University may be taken in place of this course (requires written proposal submitted prior to close of registration, and the student must be in good academic standing, free of probation).

MPP 628. Development of American Economic Institutions and Policies (4)
This course will give a sense of the interaction of economic behavior and other social institutions. The historical dynamics of how the present-day economy evolved will be examined. The course also will demonstrate how the main body of economics can be enriched by the study of history. Topics will include colonial economic policies, the institution of slavery, immigration policies, railroads and the transformation of the American economy, land distribution, and the role of government in transportation and technology.

MPP 629. Applied Methods (4)

The objective of this course is to train students in analytical methods that can be applied to a wide array of policy issues. This course will examine different approaches to policy analysis and discuss ways to account for uncertainty in the decision-making process. The student will study a variety of analytical tools such as cost-benefit analysis, program evaluation, and simulation models that can be used to inform the understanding of policy problems and proposed interventions. This course will combine literature review with hands-on modeling. Students will learn to construct simulation models to understand emerging patterns such as the spread of infectious diseases and neighborhood segregation. Students are expected to complete a number of homework assignments to demonstrate mastery of the methods taught, but a large part of the course grade will be based on a student project where students develop their own models in an area of interest.

MPP 630. Criminal Justice (4)

This course is designed as a research and writing-oriented seminar that will prepare students for conducting criminal justice policy analysis. It will cover the development, implementation, and evaluation of criminal justice policy and law enforcement, court processes, and corrections. Students will consider many interest groups and a diversity of perspectives. The course will include visits with activists, victims’ groups, law enforcement agencies, prosecutors and judges, and inmates in youth and adult facilities. Students will explore concepts associated with policy, policy making, and policy analysis and will examine current criminal justice policies in a framework that considers the development, implementation, and evaluation of policies. Students will be responsible for a research report, research progress reports, and a final presentation. In addition, students will assist the professor in preparing debate panels and managing off-campus projects and meetings.

MPP 631. International Aid (4)

This course considers both the United States and recipient country perspectives on international aid. The course will cover questions such as: What is poverty? Who are the poor? Why are they poor? What is to be done? By whom? These questions lead to the policy context within which poverty may be reduced—or worsened—by international efforts. Students may design their own research agendas (to be approved by the professor), but two major aid programs will be studied in class: The Millennium Challenge Account and The President’s Emergency Plan for AIDS Relief.

MPP 632. Social Policy (4)

This course focuses on social policy in the United States and examines the causes and consequences of poverty. The course is designed to (1) have students review and understand current social issues and policies related to vulnerable populations, (2) provide students with an understanding of the sources and the role of data in defining social policy, (3) provide students with an understanding of the role of the government in social policies, and (4) improve student research and communications skills (writing and presentation). Weekly lecture topics will include issues such as welfare reform, homelessness, immigration, family structure, economic circumstances of the elderly, and food assistance programs. Students will be responsible for preparing research reports and a final presentation. In addition, students will assist the professor in preparing debate panels.

MPP 633. Economics and Policy of Science and Innovation (4)

Innovation is the hallmark of the U.S. economy. What constitutes effective public policy toward innovation and science in the modern economy? This course will explore varied topics in the economics of science and innovation policy. These will include the role of innovation as a driver of macroeconomic growth, whether the government should subsidize research (and what kind of research), how intellectual property rights provide incentive for innovation, how the U.S. patent system can be improved, and issues regarding innovation in the global economy. Analytical tools learned in the core economics classes (particularly MPP 602 Applied Economic Analysis of Public Policy I) will be built upon and used.

PUBLIC POLICY AND AMERICAN POLITICS

MPP 640. The Political Biography of a New Policy (4)

This course traces how a new policy is born, gathers support, is evaluated, and becomes a part of the legal, social, and economic system. It includes a review and summary of the American political system with an emphasis on contemporary developments, current issues, and alternative scenarios confronting the field of public policy. This course may, upon occasion, use a specific bill, policy, or body of legislation to illustrate the generic principles and issues confronting the practice of policy formulation and implementation.

MPP 641. Public Policy and Social Regulation (4)

This course investigates how American society makes decisions, exercises collective will, mediates the interests of societal elites, and protects the rights of individuals and minority groups in developing policies of social regulation. It places an emphasis on current policies being debated at various levels that impact the decision-making process including preferential policies, federalism of both the national and state governments, election funding, and other related issues of political and social power.

MPP 642. Environmental Regulation, Business, and Society (4)

This course surveys the political, economic, and social implications of major federal environmental statutes that govern such concerns as clean air and water, waste management, endangered species, and the control of toxic substances. It also considers the growing involvement of concerns about the global environment in international treaties and trade agreements and thus on human, animal, and plant life in the entire world.
MPP 643. Immigration Policy (4)
Because Southern California and the entire United States are experiencing one of the most dramatic epochs of their history with the mass movement of people from virtually every area of the globe to the United States, it is important that the nation’s immigration policy be based on well-conceived strategies. This course will consider ways that American institutions may best deal with this historic phenomenon.

MPP 644. Public Policy and the Family (4)
This course studies policies that affect the family, including issues of health, taxation, economic security, the welfare system, gender policies, children’s welfare, education, and the needs of the aging. It also considers the impact of these policies on the strength and stability of the family unit and its ability to provide a moral and value-centered incubation for effective citizens.

MPP 645. Public Policy and Religion (4)
This course analyzes the relationships between politics and religion in American society. It also considers the monumental changes taking place in American society because of immigration and the history, theology, and political impact of various world religions on American politics as new groups are added to the American scene.

MPP 646. Public Policy and Education in America (4)
This course is a study of the history of legal, financial, and philosophical policies at various levels—local, state, and federal—that impact education. This includes consideration of significant court cases, including equal opportunity efforts such as busing, with the intended and unintended results of given policy decisions. It also looks at the implications for the future of various funding arrangements including the federal government, voucher programs, and the national standards debate and technological policies that also impact education.

MPP 647. Seminar in Political Issues (Selected Topics) (4)
This course will consider different political issues from year to year. It will involve students in cutting-edge policies while they are in the formative stage and consider tradeoffs between the common good and the rights of the individual as well as the relationship with state and federal governments and the private sector. Upon the approval of the faculty of the School of Public Policy, an upper-division or graduate-level course from one of the other schools at Pepperdine University may be taken in place of this course (requires written proposal submitted prior to close of registration, and the student must be in good academic standing, free of probation).

MPP 648. Public Policy and Political Economy (4)
This course examines four central conversations spanning four centuries on the theoretical and practical relationship between economics and politics. Each conversation addresses an important crisis, and participants articulate the problems and recommend the solutions in their own words. The first conversation between Thomas Hobbes and John Locke, in the 17th century, concerns the original human condition, the purpose of government, the right to acquire private property, and the status of democratic government. The second occurs between Americans from 1763 to 1776 as they interpret the Lockean principles of natural rights, capitalism, and democracy in response to specific economic and political crises, culminating with the Declaration of Independence and Adam Smith’s Wealth of Nations. The third conversation is between Karl Marx and John Stuart Mill as they criticize and defend, respectively, capitalistic democracy and human freedom from historicist and utilitarian perspectives. The 20th century conversation, between such authors as John Kenneth Galbraith, Michael Harrington, Milton Friedman, and Irving Kristol, considers current policies related to the role of the public sector, community responsibility, free markets, and capitalistic democracy.

MPP 649. Opinions, Passions, and Interests (4)

This course explores the multifaceted dimensions of the relationships between opinions, passions, and interests. The course will examine the theoretical-historical view using the debates of the 1787 Constitutional Convention and sections of Tocqueville’s Democracy. The contemporary practical focus will include different political issues from semester to semester and may include works by James Q. Wilson, including an examination of Supreme Court opinions on cases that have generated considerable passion and interest, the issues and personalities involved in the presidential election, and what passes for informed opinion in the various media.

MPP 650. Public Policy in Modern America (4)

This history course of public policy in recent America will place contemporary policy issues within a 40-year perspective, tracing the development and transformation of key domestic and foreign policies. The evolution and impact of the Great Society, the destruction of the New Deal coalition, and the impact of the “Reagan Revolution” will be covered. The focus will include historical precedents and analogies in decision making, policy debates, and agendas as well as current and pressing policy concerns including the possible uses and abuses of historical knowledge in policy making.

MPP 651. American Democratic Culture (4)

Drawing from classic texts and from contemporary works, this course examines the challenges to, and possibilities for, leadership in American culture. This course is, therefore, a historical and sociological examination of the sort of political culture that has emerged in the United States. Of particular concern is the development of a civic discourse and the ways in which policy matters are discussed and decided. The subject is not about simple procedural matters, but about the language, media of discourse, and values that shape our political culture. Among other subjects, this course will examine the role of public opinion in democratic decision making; the (changing) role of intermediary institutions (such as church, family, and local community) in American culture; and the impact of a consumer culture on American institutions and politics.
MPP 652. Strategy and Rhetoric of Presidential Campaigns (4)

This course will undertake an in-depth study of modern presidential campaigns, devoting approximately one class period for each campaign from 1960 to 2008. All aspects of presidential campaigns—from financing to strategy to communication—will be studied in an effort to understand these high-stakes political dramas. Also, presidential campaigns provide a window through which to view the important policy issues of their time. Time will be provided throughout the course to consider campaigns currently in progress.

MPP 654. American Strategies in World Politics (4)

This course employs a historical and thematic approach to investigate the efficacy of various alternative conceptions of American grand strategy. It begins with the formative period of American diplomacy and extends its coverage to the war on terror and beyond. Some of the perennial themes of the course include the relationship between ideals and self-interest in American foreign policy and the need to adjust strategic conceptions to meet the changing dynamics of the international environment in a way consistent with national safety and core values.

MPP 655. Contemporary American Ideologies (4)

This is a course about American political thought. While its formal title includes both “contemporary” and “American,” the course assumes a historical context that includes Europe. Beliefs, ideas, and even “ideologies” are historical products, emerging out of previous contexts, and are shaped by an ongoing interaction with other beliefs and with changing circumstances. Moreover, this course is really broader than ideologies, to include political thought and reflection on the public good. It shall examine the emerging political beliefs and ideologies in light of perennial questions about human nature, the purposes and limits of government, and the prudential means of accomplishing the political good called “justice.” Because American political thought is hegemonically democratic and liberal, the course will ask further questions regarding values inherent in this system, such as “liberty” and “equality.” Within this broader context the course will examine a variety of belief systems that have some currency in contemporary America.

MPP 656. Public Policy and the Legal Framework (4)

Public policy is strongly framed and even constrained by the legal system. This course will examine the current legal system, including an assessment of statutory law, common law, the current regulatory system, the appeals process, and the administration of law in the context of limited resources. The determinacy/indeterminacy of law will be examined as well as the impact of the regulatory state on specific social systems.

MPP 657. Federalism and the Progressives (4)

This seminar course focuses on the hundred-year journey and relationship between Federalism and the Progressives without a preconceived agenda or knowledge of the “legacy” involved. The intellectual impact of the Progressive historians on the way Americans look back at their history will be explored. A major concern is how the founding is portrayed and the extent to which the Progressives might be heavily reliant on the role of university-trained experts to create and implement public policy, thus generating the emergence of the Administrative State. The legislative branches at all levels of government and the attempt to secure “good government” will be critiqued, including the extent that Federalism influenced the origin and development of the Progressive Movement and the way Americans think about the federal arrangement.

PUBLIC POLICY AND INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS

MPP 660. Statecraft from Machiavelli to Kissinger and Beyond (4)
This course includes studies in the history of statecraft and the practice of diplomacy. It includes policy approaches toward ethnic conflict and nationalism, international power relations, and the practice of peacemaking and peacekeeping.

MPP 661. The World Leadership Role of the United States (4)
Whether by choice and design or by a unique historic situation, the United States has become a “single power” in a rapidly changing world that has not yet found the balance and profile it may maintain for much of the 21st century. This course surveys the implications of this situation with its opportunities and its hazards as well as how the United States should respond short term and long term to its role.

MPP 662. Studies in United States Relations with Other Nations (4)
This course will, from time to time, consider the special relationship that the United States has toward a specific nation (such as Japan, China, Mexico, or Russia) or a region (such as Asia, Latin America, the Middle East, or the Pacific Basin). It will trace the history of the relationship and special challenges and policy options which currently should be considered.

MPP 663. Business-Government Cooperation (4)
This course considers the proper role of the government in assisting, promoting, regulating, and monitoring business activities around the world. It includes a consideration of trade policies; regional associations such as NAFTA; the role of various governments in utilizing their intelligence agencies for industrial purposes; and policy needs related to the technology of money transfers, intellectual property, and the growth of global business institutions not claiming one nation as headquarters.

MPP 664. National Security and Freedom (4)
With the shift in threats from superpowers to terrorists and their access to sophisticated technology and powerful munitions, this course considers the policies that should be pursued to ensure the freedom of the United States against such foreign and domestic threats.

MPP 665. Region-Specific Studies (4)
This course will focus on one particular country or region with attention given to the region’s history; its economic, political, and social institutions; and its relationship to the United States and other nations. Special focus will be on the implications of the region’s needs and characteristics for the formulation of U.S. foreign policy.
MPP 667. Global Migration and International Relations (4)

With the major population shifts that are taking place in many parts of the world, and especially involving the United States, this course will survey policies that should inform and guide the United States into the next century. It should provide guidance both for the assimilation and utilization of the human and physical resources being added daily to the United States through immigration, but also it will view major potential trouble spots which may emerge because of similar phenomena elsewhere where United States' interests are at stake.

MPP 668. Seminar in International Relations (Selected Topics) (4)

This course will consider different issues in international relations from year to year. It will involve students in cutting-edge policies while they are in the formative stage and consider tradeoffs between the common good and the rights of the individual as well as the relationship with state and federal governments and the private sector. Upon the approval of the faculty of the School of Public Policy, an upper-division or graduate-level course from one of the other schools at Pepperdine University may be taken in place of this course (requires written proposal submitted prior to close of registration, and the student must be in good academic standing, free of probation).

MPP 669. International Institutions and the New Diplomacy (4)

This course will examine the rise of multilateral institutions and the development of key treaties since World War II. Beginning with the postwar development of the United Nations and the Security Council to the recent International Criminal Court, the course will examine multilateral institutions and how well they work in addressing global needs. There will be a special emphasis on the recent efforts of “the new diplomacy” to develop new international norms and treaties over the objection of the United States and other world powers. The course will explore the continuing role of state sovereignty in light of these developments.

MPP 670. War, Strategy, Democracy, and Politics (4)

This course examines the strategic, material, and moral issues that democracies must address in waging war, from a theoretical and comparative historical perspective. This course strives to provide a foundation for understanding the perennial themes of war between open and closed societies. The case studies will illuminate the dilemmas, continuities, and discontinuities that democracies encounter in waging wars with closed societies, from the Peloponnesian War to the U.S. war on terror. The objective of the course is not to provide answers, but to instill an appreciation and comprehension of one of the most fundamental and enduring responsibilities of any democratic statesmen: the role of commander in chief.

MPP 671. Comparative Democracy and Federalism (4)

The focus of this course is on the varieties, means, and challenges to deliberative self-rule in various parts of the world. It includes, but is not limited to, the variety of federal systems that have emerged in the last several decades, including a wide array of economic relationships that bind nations or other groups together. It examines numerous theories about “globalism” and asks whether a new economic and political internationalism does not make more room for local rule (at the expense of the national government).

MPP 672. International Conflict Management (4)
This course is about international conflict and its management in the post-Cold War era. Since the collapse of the Soviet Union, ethnic nationalism and globalization have increased the complexity, scope, and nature of conflict within an international order whose major characteristic is transition and uncertainty. To understand better how to manage such conflicts, this course examines the sources of inter- and intra-state conflict and means of intervention. Such intervention may be accomplished by military force either by a major power, such as the United States; diplomatic negotiation; or an international peacekeeping force. Finally, the course examines the successes and failures of conflict management theory and practice to understand what lessons can be learned and applied in the future.

MPP 673. Contending Approaches to International Politics (4)
This course is a survey of the leading alternative paradigms and theories for understanding international politics and policy implications. It provides a firm grounding in the leading contending approaches to international politics such as realism, idealism, liberal institutionalism, and variations and combinations of such approaches. It also analyzes some of the major debates in international relations theory that have profound policy implications, such as the levels of analysis debate over whether the nature of the international environment, the regime types of the major states, the perceptions of individual leaders, or a combination of all three most influence international political outcomes. The course also will test these theories with several important case studies, including the 19th century balance of power and the origins of both world wars.

MPP 674. Prudence in Politics (4)
This course investigates the interplay among power, principle, and expedience in statecraft through the prism of the cardinal virtue of prudence. It begins with an analysis of rival conceptions of prudence found in Aristotle, St. Thomas Aquinas, Machiavelli, and Edmund Burke. The major part of the course will consist of several positive and negative case studies investigating how, why, and to what extent leaders measured up to or fell far short of the standard of prudence as the course defines it: right reasoning about right things to be done. By rigorously analyzing the meaning of prudence in theory and practice, the course strives to instill in students a standard of measure for evaluating statesmanship and a disposition to emulate the best rather than the worst examples of it, refracted through the particulars of circumstances unique to each time and place.

MPP 675. Contemporary Issues in American Foreign Policy (4)
This course will address some of the fundamental choices and range of alternatives the United States faces in world politics: its relationships with Europe, American foreign policy in the Far and Middle East, and divergent perspectives on how to address the rise of China. The course also will investigate contending perspectives on the proper role in American foreign policy for international organization and the rule of law. Finally, the course will consider the ethical dimensions of American foreign policy, particularly contending perspectives on how best to strike a balance between ideals and self-interest.

STATE AND LOCAL POLICY

MPP 680. Regional Policies: Southern California as World Microcosm (4)

This course will review a brief history of Southern California followed by a survey of its contemporary social, cultural, political, and economic profile. Attention will be given to its rich and variegated ethnic makeup and the ways in which these groups enrich and renew the region. Attention also will be given to the unique challenges and opportunities presented to those charged with governing in such an area.

MPP 681. Policies Past and Present: The History and Wealth of Cities (4)

This course uses historical and analytical studies of the regional development which has attended the growth of the great cities of the world to consider lessons to be learned from the past to inform needed policies. It gives attention to the management of the unique challenges presented by such new considerations as technology, rapid travel, global communication, transient citizens, and cultural diversity.

MPP 682. Policy Relationships of State and Local Government (4)

This is a study of state and local governments in the United States and the public policy debate which seeks to define their relationship in the 21st century. Emphasis is on the role of states and localities in the American political system, state policy making, and the government of urban areas. Special attention is given to reengineering and entrepreneurship, privatization, and other current local policy themes.

MPP 683. Urban and Agricultural Policies (4)

Given that California has the largest agricultural economy in the nation as well as several of the nation’s largest urban concentrations, this course will study the balance of power and policy initiatives required to attend to the needs of two often-conflicting perspectives. Included will be the consideration of political representation, the allocation of such scarce resources as water, and the kinds of institutions which can best serve this regional diversity.

MPP 684. Regional Governing Institutions (4)

Since more and more policy decisions involve the cooperation of numerous municipalities and service districts, this course will analyze the role and effectiveness of such institutions as the California Air Resources Board and the Metropolitan Water District of Southern California and ways in which municipal utilities will be forced to compete with private companies in the future.
MPP 685. The Financing of Local and Regional Government (4)
This course considers the sources of financing for local and regional government; the relationship between these bodies on the one hand and the state and federal government on the other; service provision policies; privatization of public services; and issues related to taxation, budgets, and investments.

MPP 686. Permissions, Development, and the Environment (4)
This course studies the proper role of government in efficient and constitutional land use, the permitting process, and the governing bodies which play a role in these policies. Examples of how the effective coordination of various governing agencies can provide “one-stop” permissioning will be studied.

MPP 687. Seminar in Regional Policies (Selected Topics) (4)
This course will consider different regional issues from year to year. It will involve students in cutting-edge policies while they are in the formative stage and consider tradeoffs between the common good and the rights of the individual as well as the relationship with state and federal governments and the private sector. Upon the approval of the faculty of the School of Public Policy, an upper-division or graduate-level course from one of the other schools at Pepperdine University may be taken in place of this course (requires written proposal submitted prior to close of registration, and the student must be in good academic standing, free of probation).

Members of the inaugural Class of 1999 celebrate their 10-year reunion.
The School of Law building is nestled on the hillside in Malibu and is home to the joint juris doctor and dispute resolution programs.
The Master of Public Policy and Juris Doctor (MPP/JD) degree program is a joint degree program between the School of Public Policy and the School of Law. It is designed to strengthen and perfect the preparation of those whose successful leadership depends on a fuller understanding and a stronger skill set for addressing issues of public policy in the practice of law or in the interface between the private business sector and an increasingly complex government presence. Reflecting a Christian commitment to subsidiary and grass-roots problem solving within the community, the program addresses the management of nonprofit associations and foundations, understanding that, at times, they may depend heavily on a carefully tended relationship with government or may be expected to provide social services on behalf of the government. The Pepperdine program is unique in recognizing the growing importance of the intermediary institutions between the federal government and the individual as well as the critical role of local, regional, and state government. It further acknowledges the need for domestic and global business to appreciate more fully the implications of public policy, both in the United States and other regions, and how to manage those policies.

The School of Law program is well established and well regarded, blending substantial professional training in both legal substance and method with value-based and theoretical inquiry. The School of Public Policy program draws deeply on our nation’s ethical and historic roots. Both programs aspire to train leaders of high competence and insight, who can digest and articulate complex legal and public policy materials in order to both shape and apply public policy in a free society. As the School of Law anchors students in a comprehensive understanding of public and private law, the School of Public Policy further develops the related analytic skills of political economics as well as the managerial skills of organization development and strategy.

The continuous scrutiny and development of the program may result in adjustments to the content, sequencing, and number of courses required during this and future academic years.

The four-year joint MPP/JD degree program requires a total of 130 units: 82 units of law courses (as described in the present School of Law catalog) and 48 units of the public policy curriculum. It thus permits the student to complete in four years what would ordinarily require five years if undertaken separately. Applicants for the joint degree program must apply and be granted admission to both the School of Public Policy and the School of Law. The admission requirements for potential joint MPP/JD students are identical to the admission requirements for the MPP and JD degree programs if pursued separately.

The first year of study is completed exclusively through either the School of Public Policy or the School of Law with the second-year studies taken at the school not enrolled in during the first year. The third and fourth years of the program are completed at the School of Law for three semesters and the School of Public Policy for one semester.
The required 48 units of MPP study and other MPP-related requirements for a joint MPP/JD degree student are as follows:

Of the 20 required elective units, 12 units must be completed in one of the four specializations: Public Policy and Economics, Public Policy and American Politics, Public Policy and International Relations, or State and Local Policy. All joint MPP/JD degree students must complete the course in administrative law in the School of Law.

Further information on the public policy curriculum may be obtained by contacting the School of Public Policy. Questions regarding the law curriculum should be addressed to the School of Law.

For an entering student admitted to the joint program, studies begun in the School of Public Policy may proceed in accordance with the following outline:

JOINT MASTER OF PUBLIC POLICY AND MASTER OF BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION (MPP/MBA)

The Graziadio School of Business and Management is adjacent to the School of Public Policy on the Drescher Graduate Campus.
The Master of Public Policy and Master of Business Administration (MPP/MBA) degree program is a joint program between the School of Public Policy and the Graziadio School of Business and Management full-time program. Pepperdine’s philosophy of leadership is one that embraces the highest academic standards guided by sound ethical principles. The joint MPP/MBA degree program provides an enriched leadership experience by focusing on management capabilities, leadership qualities, and a commitment to utilizing the tools of analysis and policy design to effect successful implementation and institutional change.

The Graziadio School of Business and Management full-time MBA program is highly regarded for preparing students for leadership roles in an expanding global marketplace. The School of Public Policy program draws deeply on this nation’s ethical and historic roots. Both programs aspire to train students who are willing to strive for academic excellence and moral decisiveness and inspired to delve deeply into societal, community, and global issues of management and leadership. As the Graziadio School of Business and Management provides students with a comprehensive understanding of global business and management, the School of Public Policy develops analytic skills of political economics. Both schools nurture ethical and managerial skills of organization development and strategy.

The continuous scrutiny and development of the program may result in adjustments to the content, sequencing, and number of courses required during this and future academic years.

The joint MPP/MBA degree program requires a total of 98 units: 48 units of the public policy curriculum and 50 units of business school courses. It thus permits the student to complete in three years what ordinarily would require four years if undertaken separately. Applicants for the joint program must apply and be granted admission to both the School of Public Policy and the Graziadio School of Business and Management. The admission requirements for potential joint MPP/MBA degree students are identical to the admission requirements for the MPP and full-time MBA degree programs if pursued separately.

In the first year of study, the student will complete 32 units at the School of Public Policy, including 24 units of core requirements and 8 units of electives. In the second year, the student will complete 34 units at the Graziadio School of Business and Management. The third year is devoted to 16 units at the Graziadio School of Business and Management and 16 units at the School of Public Policy, including 4 units of core requirements and 12 units of electives. The list on page 61 shows the courses for the School of Public Policy.

With the concurrent approval of the deans of the Graziadio School of Business and Management and the School of Public Policy, the three-year joint MPP/MBA degree may be pursued by a School of Public Policy student with advanced standing. Admission to the Graziadio School of Business and Management would have to be separately granted. In such an event, the first year of business school study would be completed in the second year of the joint degree program. The chart on page 61 provides the course study and required sequence.
With the concurrent approval of the deans of the Graziadio School of Business and Management and the School of Public Policy, the three-year joint MPP/MBA degree also may be pursued by an MBA student with advanced standing. Again, admission to the School of Public Policy would have to be separately granted. In such an event, the School of Public Policy portion of the joint degree program would be completed in the second year of the joint program.

Of the 40 units of core requirements in the Graziadio School of Business and Management, students in the joint degree program will be exempted from two 2-unit courses on the basis of courses taken in the School of Public Policy: ECNM 592 Economic Concepts (2 units) and ECNM 612 Macroeconomic Analysis (2 units) will be satisfied by MPP 602 and MPP 605 Applied Economic Analysis of Public Policy I and II (both 4 units each). Should an MBA student plan to use ECNM 592 Economic Concepts and ECNM 612 Macroeconomic Analysis to satisfy the School of Public Policy core economics requirement, then that student will be required to take an additional 4 units in economics and an additional 4 units in electives at the School of Public Policy. The additional 4-unit course in economics will not count toward a specialization in economics. In addition, students in the joint degree program will be required to complete 4 units in quantitative and research methods. Students may either complete DESC 593 Applied Data Analysis (2 units) AND ISTM 603 Information Resources and Technology (2 units) OR complete MPP 603 Applied Research Methods in Public Policy (4 units). See page 62 for related School of Public Policy course descriptions. Should an MBA student plan to use DESC 593 Applied Data Analysis and ISTM 603 Information Resources and Technology to satisfy the School of Public Policy core research methods requirement, then that student will be required to take an additional 4 units in an elective course at the School of Public Policy.

A joint degree student must take a minimum of three electives (12 units) in one of the specializations at the School of Public Policy: Public Policy and Economics, Public Policy and American Politics, Public Policy and International Relations, or State and Local Policy. The public policy elective courses selected by the joint degree student to fulfill this requirement must be approved by the joint degree student’s advisor in the School of Public Policy.

The Graziadio School of Business and Management provides six areas of elective emphasis: Finance, Marketing, Leadership and Managing Organization Change, Dispute Resolution, Entrepreneurial Management, and Global Business. In addition, elective courses are offered in international trade and finance.

School of Public Policy courses will be taught in compliance with the standards of AACSB International—The Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business.

Students should consult the School of Public Policy and the Graziadio School of Business and Management academic catalogs for elective course offerings and course descriptions. Further information on the public policy curriculum may be obtained by contacting the School of Public Policy. Questions regarding the MBA curriculum should be addressed to the Graziadio School of Business and Management.

Students in the joint program may waive three 2-unit business school courses on the basis of completing the following three 4-unit School of Public Policy courses with a grade of “B” or better:

MPP 602. Applied Economic Analysis of Public Policy I (4)

This course is designed to help students learn to apply important economic principles to domestic and global policy issues. Students will develop skills in the application of economic reasoning to policy problems. Included are such key principles and concepts as consumer choice, the production decisions of firms, the function of prices in allocating scarce resources, the pricing of public goods, the role and behavior of markets, market failure, and externalities.

Satisfies ECNM 592 Economic Concepts (2) and 2 units of economics electives.

MPP 603. Applied Research Methods in Public Policy (4)

This course emphasizes the application of research methodology and statistical techniques for evaluating the performance of public policy decisions. Students should be able to understand and apply basic research design methodology and be able to interpret results. The course provides both a theoretical foundation and practical applications of these methods, including variance, regression, cost-benefit analysis, survey sampling, and other tools of evaluation. Included is an introduction to the rich sources of data available on the Internet.

Satisfies DESC 593 Applied Data Analysis (2) and ISTM 603 Information Resources and Technology (2).

MPP 605. Applied Economic Analysis of Public Policy II (4)

A continuation of Applied Economic Analysis of Public Policy I, this course shares the objective of applying economic principles to current policy issues. The course focuses on the tools of both microeconomic analysis and macroeconomic analysis and the role of government in the economy. Topics covered include the public sector, the role and effect of fiscal and monetary policy, and the global economy. Prerequisite: MPP 602 Applied Economic Analysis of Public Policy I.

Satisfies ECNM 612 Macroeconomic Analysis (2) and 2 units of economics electives.

Complete course titles and descriptions for the MBA sequence can be found in the Graziadio School's academic catalog at http://bschool.pepperdine.edu/programs/catalog/.
The magnificent 830-acre campus, most of which remains in its natural state, is located just minutes outside of Los Angeles.
The Master of Public Policy and Master of Dispute Resolution (MPP/MDR) degree program is a joint program between the School of Public Policy and the Straus Institute for Dispute Resolution of the School of Law.

The Straus Institute for Dispute Resolution program is well established and well regarded, having been recognized for several consecutive years as one of the top dispute resolution programs in the country by U.S. News and World Report. The School of Public Policy program draws deeply on our nation's ethical and historic roots.

The joint MPP/MDR degree program requires a total of 82 units: 26 units in dispute resolution courses and 56 units in public policy. Normally, completing a Master of Dispute Resolution (MDR) and a Master of Public Policy (MPP) separately would require 32 and 64 units, respectively, or a total of 96 units. With careful planning, it is envisioned that MPP students could complete their MDR requirements in summer sessions and/or the winter intensive sessions falling before, within, or after the two-year MPP program.

Applicants for the joint degree program must apply and be granted admission to both the School of Public Policy and the Straus Institute for Dispute Resolution. The admission requirements for potential joint MPP/MDR degree students are identical to the admission requirements for the MPP and MDR degree programs if pursued separately.

With the concurrent approval of the deans of the School of Law and the School of Public Policy, the joint MPP/MDR degree may be pursued by a School of Public Policy student with advanced standing. Admission to the Straus Institute for Dispute Resolution would have to be separately granted. In addition, with the concurrent approval of the deans of the School of Law and the School of Public Policy, the joint MPP/MDR degree also may be pursued by a Straus Institute for Dispute Resolution student with advanced standing. Again, admission to the School of Public Policy would have to be separately granted.

The continuous scrutiny and development of the program may result in adjustments to the content, sequencing, and number of courses required during this and future academic years.

All joint MPP/MDR degree students must complete 28 core units and 28 elective units (8 of which must be qualifying MDR-related MPP courses) in the School of Public Policy. In addition, all joint degree students must complete 16 core units, 4 elective units, and either a 6-unit dispute resolution thesis and MPP Summer Internship or clinical requirement (see item 6) in the Straus Institute for Dispute Resolution. The detailed requirements for the joint MPP/MDR program are as follows:

1. Completion of all 28 units of the School of Public Policy core courses.
2. Completion of 8 elective units in the School of Public Policy from among the following qualifying MDR-related MPP electives:

   MPP 621  Environmental and Natural Resource Economics
   MPP 623  Law and Economics

   (4)
3. Completion of 20 additional elective units in the School of Public Policy. Of the 28 elective units taken at the School of Public Policy, 12 units must be taken in one of four specializations: Public Policy and Economics, Public Policy and American Politics, Public Policy and International Relations, and State and Local Policy.

4. Completion of 16 core MDR units consisting of the following eight required courses:

6. Completion of either the 6-unit MDR thesis and MPP Summer Internship or the 6-unit MDR clinical requirement as described in the School of Law catalog. However, joint MPP/MDR degree students must design their thesis or clinical experience to address, evaluate, or incorporate the substantive principles of both areas of study. The MDR clinical requirement can be substituted for the MPP Summer Internship requirement.

In addition to the required 28 units of core courses for MPP study, the joint MPP/MDR degree student also must complete 28 units of electives (consult this catalog for elective offerings). The required core courses are as follows:

MPP 600  The Roots of American Order: What is Public Policy? .......... (4)
MPP 601  Ethical Dimensions of Public Policy: Great Books and Great Ideas ................................................. (4)
MPP 602  Applied Economic Analysis of Public Policy I ...................... (4)

Introduction

Pepperdine University seeks students possessing distinctive academic promise, high standards of personal conduct, and a sense of professionalism. Students seeking admission to the School of Public Policy must have received a bachelor’s degree from a regionally accredited college or university prior to matriculation.

Only those applicants who show substantial promise of successfully completing the study of public policy are accepted. Students will enter the Pepperdine School of Public Policy with a variety of baccalaureate degrees and professional experiences, exemplifying the school's commitment to interdisciplinary study. The school seeks highly motivated students with a demonstrated commitment to scholarship, an appreciation for human values, and the desire to make a difference in the spheres of influence in which they are preparing to serve.

The School of Public Policy strives to be a diverse academic community—religiously, economically, geographically, ethnically, and culturally. Applicants who may contribute to a diverse community are encouraged to apply.

Applicants are advised that the decision of admission is contingent upon the truthfulness of the information contained in the application files submitted by the applicants and/or persons of their choice, including letters of recommendation. Discovery of false information subsequent to admission is, at the University’s discretion, grounds for withdrawal of the offer of admission or for immediate dismissal at any point in the student’s course of study. Such dismissal shall result in forfeiture of all charges paid and academic credits earned.

Evaluation of Candidates

Responsibility for evaluation of candidates for admission is vested in the Admission Committee of the School of Public Policy. Upon completion of the file, it is sent to the committee where objective criteria such as the undergraduate grade point average and the standardized admission test scores are carefully evaluated. The next stage is subjective and includes evaluation of the applicant’s ability to make a positive contribution to the unique environment of a Christian public policy school, employment experience, community involvement, commitment to high standards of morality and ethics, reasons for wanting to study public policy, and any other relevant subjective information furnished by the applicant.
Diversity

The School of Public Policy seeks to attract students who will bring variety, diversity, and excellence to the study of public policy. In addition to academic performance, admission decisions are based on consideration of other factors that would serve these purposes. These factors include unique professional or service experience, a history of overcoming disadvantage, unusual life experiences, unique cultural experience, racial and ethnic origin, and other qualities that are likely to enrich the learning and living environment at the School of Public Policy and serve the University’s mission.

Admission Procedure

Prospective students may apply online by completing the School of Public Policy online application at http://publicpolicy.pepperdine.edu.

1. A completed online Application for Admission Form is required with a $50 nonrefundable application fee. Applications should be received by the School of Public Policy, Office of Admission, 24255 Pacific Coast Highway, Malibu, CA 90263-7493, by May 1, for fall admission. Applications received after the May 1 deadline will be reviewed, and offers of admission will be made on a space-available basis.

2. Two letters of recommendation are required. Recommendations should be furnished by those individuals who can best assess the applicant’s ability to succeed in a school of public policy and should establish the applicant’s academic accomplishments, professional skills, and/or commitment to the public sector. When possible, one of the recommendations should be provided by an academic person familiar with the applicant’s undergraduate studies and the other from an employer or a professional in a position to judge the applicant’s potential for success. Relatives should not be asked to submit letters of recommendation. Prospective Student Recommendation Forms are provided for the recommenders’ convenience. If an individual prefers to submit the recommendation in a letter format, the applicant’s full name should be provided. Stamped envelopes properly addressed to the Pepperdine University School of Public Policy Office of Admission should be provided to those submitting recommendations on the applicant’s behalf.

3. Each applicant for admission must take a standardized admission test and submit the official scores to the School of Public Policy of Pepperdine University. The Graduate Record Examination (GRE) is the preferred test, although the Graduate Management Admission Test (GMAT) and the Law School Admission Test (LSAT) may be considered. Applicants should contact the Office of Admission directly to discuss test requirements. It is recommended that applicants take the applicable test well in advance of the application process, but not sooner than five years in advance of the year for which the applicant is applying. All official test scores should be sent directly to the Office of Admission from the testing service.

Note to international applicants (applicants with undergraduate degrees from institutions outside of the United States or Canada): The School of Public Policy acknowledges that the GRE scores of international students may be affected by language and cultural differences. This is taken into consideration when such students’ applications are evaluated. The scores are nevertheless required and must come directly from the Educational Testing Service.

4. A bachelor's degree with an acceptable grade point average from a regionally accredited four-year college or university is required.

5. An official transcript should be sent to the School of Public Policy directly from each college or university attended. A final official transcript from the college or university that granted the degree, showing the baccalaureate degree posted and date awarded, is required before attending. Transcripts must be mailed directly by the registrar from the college or university that granted the undergraduate degree and must be sent to the School of Public Policy Office of Admission. If work toward the undergraduate degree was completed at other colleges or universities, official transcripts from these institutions must be submitted. All transcripts and documents submitted become the property of the University and are not returnable.

Note to international applicants: The academic records referred to as transcripts should provide a listing, year-by-year, of all courses taken as well as the grade or mark received for each course and must be signed by the registrar, controller of examinations, or president of the university issuing the document. Official records are to be in the language of instruction, accompanied by official translations in English, if applicable. Translations must bear an original ink signature and seal, as translations alone will not be acceptable. Translations sent directly from the institution are considered official. The grading scale of the institution and the student’s rank in class should be included when such information is available. Secondary school records should not be submitted. Transcripts must bear an official signature in ink of the appropriate official of the institution(s), such as the registrar or recorder of records, and must bear the institutional seal. If the college or university will not provide original official academic documents, exact copies that have been verified as “Certified True Copies” by the appropriate institutional official of each institution which the student has attended should be sent. Uncertified copies are not acceptable.

6. A completed personal statement and one essay on an ethical or moral dilemma should accompany the online application. Essay and statement requirements are outlined on the School of Public Policy Web site at http://publicpolicy.pepperdine.edu/admission/requirements.

7. A current résumé or curriculum vita should be included. While work experience is not required for entrance to the Master of Public Policy program, professional experience will be considered as part of the admission process and can greatly strengthen the applicant’s profile as a candidate for admission.

8. A score of at least 600 on the Paper-based Test (PBT), 250 on the Computer-based Test (CBT), or 87 on the Internet-based Test (iBT) for the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL) is required for applicants whose primary language is not English and who are not graduates of a college or university in the United States. Official scores should be sent directly to the Office of Admission. For test center and test information, visit the TOEFL Web site at http://www.toefl.org. The Pepperdine University institution school code is 4630. Applications are not considered complete until the institution receives the TOEFL score. In lieu of the TOEFL score, a score of 7.0 or better on the International English Language Testing System (IELTS) exam will be accepted. For test center and test information, visit the IELTS Web site at http://www.ielts.org. IELTS tests are administered at accredited test centers throughout the world.

9. International students who do not hold a permanent resident visa in the United States must submit an International Student Data Form. The International Student Data Form may be obtained from the School of Public Policy Web site.

It is the applicant’s responsibility to be certain that the Application for Admission is on file by the published deadline. Admission to the Pepperdine University School of Public Policy will not be considered until the application file is complete. Application files are kept confidential and are not provided to another who does not have a legitimate need to know.
Campus Visits

Prospective students are encouraged to visit the campus and tour the facilities. Whenever possible, a campus visit will include a meeting with a current student and a classroom visit. It is recommended that an appointment be made for a campus visit with the Office of Admission. The School of Public Policy admission staff are available to answer questions and provide information.

Accepting an Offer of Admission

Applicants will be notified of acceptance status only after the application file is complete and the Admission Committee has reviewed the file. Offers of admission to entering first-year students are made only for the fall semester.

The applicant is required to make a nonrefundable deposit of $200 to the School of Public Policy to accept the offer of admission. Acceptance deposit receipt deadlines will be stated in the offer of admission. For those applicants who matriculate, the acceptance deposit will be applied toward the first semester’s tuition.

Deferral

Accepted applicants may defer admission for one year after review and approval from the Office of Admission. Scholarship offers cannot be guaranteed to those applicants who defer admission.

Enrollment Classification and Admission Status

Enrollment in the University in other than Regular Status is not synonymous with admission to a degree program, and permission to enroll does not imply that a student is, or will be, automatically guaranteed the right to continue in a degree program. Students are classified in groups on the basis of their academic preparation and degree objectives.

Regular Status

For admission to Regular Status, applicants must meet the minimal requirements for admission together with any and all requirements specified by the academic program in which the work is to be taken.

Unclassified Status

Students who, for valid reasons, cannot complete the application file before registration may be allowed to enroll as Unclassified students. In all cases, the student must have on file a complete Application for Admission Form and furnish a statement of satisfactory academic standing at the last institution attended. Permission to enroll with Unclassified Status will be determined by the dean of the School of Public Policy. Students may enroll as Unclassified for 45 days only, and all applicable finance policies apply. It is the student’s responsibility to make certain that the admission requirements are completed by the end of this period. No amount of credit taken while in Unclassified Status will assure a student of admission. Admission to Pepperdine University will be confirmed by a letter from the assistant dean for student services upon completion of the application file. Discovery of false information subsequent to admission is, at the University’s discretion, grounds for withdrawal of the offer of admission or for immediate dismissal at any point in the student’s course of study. Dismissal shall result in forfeiture of all charges paid and academic credits earned.

Nondegree Status

Students may apply for enrollment in Nondegree Status if they do not wish to pursue a degree or credential but intend to have credits received from the University transferred elsewhere. Course work taken as a Nondegree student is not generally applied to degree programs at the University. Students in this status may not advance register. No amount of course work taken while in Nondegree Status will assure a student of admission. Requests for permission to enroll in this status should be addressed to the School of Public Policy Office of the Dean.

Other Admission-Related Policies

Transfer Credit

An applicant may file a petition with the Office of the Dean for the approval of transfer units acceptable for graduate-level course work from a regionally accredited institution or foreign institution as recognized by the Office of International Student Services, provided that the transfer credit meets all equivalency requirements. The School of Public Policy will allow no more than 8 units of approved equivalent graduate-level transferable credit. Transfer credit will be provided only for elective courses. Transfer credit will not be applied to core courses. Students transferring 8 or fewer units of approved credit must complete at least 56 of the required 64 units of study in residence in order to graduate from Pepperdine University School of Public Policy.

Applicants seeking transfer credit prior to admission should file a written petition with the Office of the Dean two weeks in advance of the application deadline. Students in good standing, free of probation, may petition for transfer credit courses taken outside the School of Public Policy and after admission to the School of Public Policy under certain conditions. These petitions must include the course description from the applicable catalog, number of units, duration of course, grade received, and other pertinent information. Students should be aware that a reduction or change in course load may adversely affect scholarship and financial aid.

Transfer credit will be considered for review only after meeting the following guidelines: the course work must be graduate level and completed at an accredited graduate school, the grade received must be a “B” or better, the course work may not be more than five years old at the time of admission into the School of Public Policy, and the course work must be equivalent and relevant to the current Pepperdine School of Public Policy curriculum.
Credit will not be given for life experience, non-credit extension courses, thesis work, credit by examination, undergraduate course work, and work or internship experiences.

If approved, the transfer credit will count toward the student’s unit requirements for the program, but the grade received will not be factored into the student’s Pepperdine grade point average.

Course Challenge

A student may submit a petition to the Office of the Dean to challenge a course. Certain core courses which can be challenged successfully may be substituted upon the approval of the instructor. No course credit will be waived. Students transferring 8 or fewer units of approved credit must complete at least 56 of the required 64 units of study in residence in order to graduate from Pepperdine University School of Public Policy. (For example, should a student successfully challenge MPP 602 Applied Economic Analysis of Public Policy I, that student must take an economics elective in lieu of that course.)

Readmission

Students who take a leave of absence or withdraw from the School of Public Policy and wish to reapply must send a written notice to the Office of Admission. Applications for readmission must be received seven weeks prior to the start of the semester in which the student wishes to enroll. The GRE, GMAT, or LSAT does not need to be repeated if the scores are not more than five years old. Approved applicants for readmission will be permitted to reenroll after receiving academic and financial clearance. Students who have been readmitted are subject to fulfillment of all program curriculum changes and degree requirements that have been instituted in their absence. Students must submit official transcripts from any school attended during the absence, whether or not transfer credit is being requested. Original scholarship offers cannot be guaranteed for readmission.

In making a decision about an application for readmission, the following matters are among those considered:

- The academic standing of the student prior to withdrawal.
- The length of time between the withdrawal and application for readmission.
- The reasons for withdrawal.

Withdrawal Because of Military Service

Students in good standing who are required to withdraw because of an involuntary military obligation are entitled to return provided they were in good standing, free of probation, at the time of withdrawal and they apply for readmission to the first semester beginning after completion of their military service. (See “Involuntary Military Service” under Academic Policies for more information.)
The Thornton Administrative Center houses many University employees and offices including the Office of Student Information and Services.
Tuition and fees cover only a portion of the total costs of educating a student at Pepperdine. Because the University is a private, independent institution that does not receive operating support from public funds, gifts from supporters and alumni, grants from supporting foundations, and income from endowments provide both operational and capital funds not provided by student tuition, fees, and other charges.

Current Charges

The following charges are for the academic year beginning August 2010. Pepperdine University reserves the right to adjust the charges at any time before the charges are incurred by the student. Charges may be expected to increase on an annual basis as higher education continues to experience cost increases.

1 All first-year students must submit this deposit to guarantee the right to register. This deposit will be credited toward tuition charges upon enrollment.

2 Required of all new students to reserve a space in campus housing. The deposit will be credited toward room charges upon occupancy.

3 Room charges for one semester. Fall housing contracts are for two semesters, the fall and spring semesters.

4 Married student room charges are per month and require a 12-month contract.
Other Charges (Nonrefundable)

- Late registration fee: $150
- Withdrawal fee: $150
- Class audit fee, per class: $100
- Course challenge fee: $250
- Official transcript fee, per copy: $5
- Two-payment option service charge: $25
- Three-payment option service charge: $50
- Finance charge (per day): 0.027%
- Returned check charge: $25

$ Students who are eligible for and choose to use the two-payment option will be assessed a $25 service charge per term, due with the first payment.

$ Students who are eligible for and choose to use the three-payment option will be assessed a $50 service charge per term, due with the first payment.

$ A 0.027 percent per day delinquency charge (liquidated damages under Cal. Civ. Code §1671b) is applicable to all delinquent balances. The imposition of such a delinquency charge does not constitute an agreement to forebear collection of the delinquent account.

Payment Policies

The student is responsible for the payment of any outstanding balance on his or her student account. All tuition, fees, room, and board charges are due by the first day after the add/drop period of the term unless the student is eligible for and has chosen one of the installment payment options listed in the following section. Students who register after the due date are required to pay at the time of registration. Registration and confirmation of class assignments are not complete until financial clearance is received, indicating full or partial payment in accordance with the payment policies described in this section.

The online student account serves as the official student bill and will reflect the charges, credits, amounts due, and specific due dates. It is the students’ responsibility to view their student account online for their account balance due and to make the appropriate payment by the due date. Finance charges will accrue daily on charges not paid by the due date. To avoid these charges, the Office of Student Accounts must receive the payment by the due date.
In the event that the student fails to attend class or leaves the University for any reason, the student must formally withdraw through the School of Public Policy Office of the Dean and the Office of Student Information and Services. In addition, withdrawing students must contact the School of Public Policy Office of Financial Aid and the Office of Housing and Residence Life, if applicable. Failure to complete this withdrawal process will result in continued obligation for tuition and other charges.

How to Pay

Payments can be made by cash, check, or cashier’s check and are accepted via mail or in person at the cashier’s office, OneStop, or the Office of Student Accounts.

Payments sent directly to the University can be mailed to the following address:

Pepperdine University
Office of Student Accounts
24255 Pacific Coast Highway
Malibu, CA 90263-7999

Checks should be made payable to Pepperdine University and must include the student’s name and University ID number. Books and supplies are purchased at University bookstores and, accordingly, require separate checks. A fee will be assessed for each returned check. Repeated occurrences of returned checks will necessitate that future payments be made in cash or by cashier’s check.

Electronic check (eCheck) payments may be made online by clicking the “Make A Payment” link located on the Student Center in WaveNet. Transaction fees are not charged for making eCheck payments online.

Payments in excess of the amounts due to the University may be rejected and returned to the payor. Students are responsible for accurate and timely payments. Any overpayment amounts accepted by the University may be refunded at the end of the term with the student’s written request. A $50 processing fee will be deducted from the amount of the refund.

The School of Public Policy Office of Student Accounts may be contacted at (310) 506-4981.

Penalties on Delinquent Balances

Paper bills are not produced. The amount due for each term is available by viewing the online student account, which reflects the charges, credits, amounts due, and specific due dates for each term. It is the students’ responsibility to view their online student account for their balance due and to make appropriate arrangements for payment by the due date. Finance charges will accrue daily on any past due balances.
Add/Drop Policy

Students may change courses during the add/drop period. Students registered for fewer than 12 units who subsequently add units that bring their total unit load to 12 to 18 must pay the flat-rate amount. If units are added that result in additional charges being due, the charges must be paid at the time of the change or be handled in accordance with the installment options. Students who drop units within the flat-rate range (12–18) are not eligible for a refund. Students are responsible for dropping any class that is cancelled but may add another class in its place.

Advance Registration

Any continuing student whose account is current and has not previously been subject to collection will be permitted to advance register without payment for the future term until the designated due date. Students who do not comply with payment policies or whose accounts have previously been subject to collection will be required to pay for all future term charges in advance prior to being allowed to register for that term.

In the event that a student advance registers but subsequently fails to attend a class, the student should formally withdraw through the Office of Student Information and Services to avoid continued obligation for tuition and term fees, which will accrue finance charges if not paid. The $150 withdrawal fee will be applied to the accounts of students who advance register and do not attend class.

The University reserves the right to cancel the course registration for any student who advance registers for a subsequent semester but fails to clear his or her student account balance of any outstanding charges by the end of the preceding semester.

Security Interest in Student Records

A student may not receive any diploma, certificate, or transcript until all accounts, current or otherwise, have been settled in accordance with University policies as outlined. Such documents will be retained by Pepperdine University as security for such obligations until they are satisfied. In addition, every student with a loan must complete an exit interview with the Office of Financial Aid before any records will be released.

If a student defaults on payment of a student loan and/or student account balance, all records will be held until the student either pays off the balance owed or brings the loan and/or account to current status. In addition, every student with a loan must complete an exit interview with the Account Resolution Office before any records will be released. Each student also agrees to pay all costs of collection upon default including, but not limited to, collection agency fees, attorney fees, and location searches.

If a student defaults on payment of a Perkins/National Direct Student Loan, all records will be held until the student either pays off the loan or brings the loan to current status.
Payment Options

The University offers several payment options for students to pay their tuition, room, and board charges.

Simple Payment Option

The balance of the student’s account is due in full by the first day after the add/drop period of the term. Finance charges will be assessed for each payment that is late.

Installment Payment Options

(Two-Payment Option or Three-Payment Option)

If the student’s account has not previously been in default, that student will be permitted to pay the charges for tuition, room, and board remaining, after deduction of any financial aid, in installments as described in this section. Finance charges will be assessed daily for each installment payment that is late. The privilege of using one of the installment payment options will be revoked upon any installment payment becoming delinquent. Students who do not comply with payment policies or whose account has previously been subject to collection will be required to pay all charges upon future registrations and advance registrations.

The installment payment option is not applicable for the summer term. Registration for the summer term requires payment of all charges on or before the designated due date for that term.

Two-Payment Option

Tuition, room, and board charges remaining, after deduction of any financial aid, are divided into two equal installments to be paid according to the schedule below. All other charges are due on or before the due date listed on the student’s online account. A nonrefundable $25 service charge per term will be added to the student account and due with the first payment.

For Fall and Spring Terms

First installment due on or before: First day after the add/drop period for the term

Second installment due on or before: 30 calendar days from the first installment payment due date

Three-Payment Option

Tuition, room, and board charges remaining, after deduction of any financial aid, are divided into three equal installments to be paid according to the schedule below. All other charges are due on or before the due date listed on the student’s online account. A nonrefundable $50 service charge per term will be added to the student account and due with the first payment.

For Fall and Spring Terms

First installment due on or before: First day after the add/drop period for the term
Second installment due on or before: 30 calendar days from the first installment payment due date

Third installment due on or before: 30 calendar days from the second installment payment due date

Refund Policies

University operating expenses and student charges are planned on an annual basis. The refund policies have been established in recognition of both the University’s advance commitment to operating expenses and a spirit of fairness for students who find it necessary to discontinue the use of University services.

Tuition

Consideration for refund of tuition requires written notice from the student to the School of Public Policy and the Office of Student Information and Services of the student’s intention to drop a course or withdraw from the University. The date this notice is received is the effective date for determining the refund amount according to the schedule below.

Students may drop classes without tuition penalty during the add/drop period only; however, students who withdraw from all classes after the initial registration and up until last day of add/drop for the term will be charged a $150 withdrawal fee. Students withdrawing from courses after the add/drop period are subject to the partial refund policies listed below. Students should consult the academic calendar for the deadline for withdrawal with a grade of “W.”

Through the add/drop period ........................................... 100% less $150
During the third week* ..................................................... 75%
During the fourth week* .................................................. 50%
Through the seventh week* .............................................. 25%
After the seventh week* .................................................. 0

*A week is a calendar week in which any School of Public Policy class is scheduled.

Room and Board

Students are financially responsible for the room charges for the entire contractual period once they have checked into the apartment complex.

Graduating or Pepperdine international program students who leave campus to participate in a Pepperdine international program or graduate from Pepperdine University will be released from this contract without penalty.

All other requests to obtain release from this contract must be submitted in writing to the Office of Housing and Residence Life. Students should be advised that contract releases are rarely granted. Any contract cancelled following check-in, as a result of an approved petition, will result in a $250 cancellation fee assessed to the student’s account. Students who move off campus without approval from the Office of Housing and Residence Life are responsible for the remainder of the contracted room charges and, if applicable, board charges for the full contractual period.

The cancellation fee schedules are as follows:

New graduate student
- Cancellation before July 1: No Penalty
- Cancellation on or after July 1: $250
- Cancellation on or after July 15: $500
- No Show: $500

Returning graduate student
- Cancellation before April 21: No Penalty
- Cancellation on or after April 21: $250
- Cancellation on or after May 1: $500
- Cancellation on or after June 1: $600
- Cancellation on or after July 1: $700
- Cancellation on or after August 1: $800
- No Show: $900

All housing cancellations must be made in writing to the Office of Housing and Residence Life. E-mail is acceptable to housing@pepperdine.edu. Students should refer to their housing contracts for clarification of these policies.

Students are permitted to either purchase a meal plan or have Waves Cash added to their identification card that can be used in any dining facility on campus. Contact the Office of Housing and Residence Life or Dining Services for more details.

Other Charges

All other fees and charges are nonrefundable unless specifically stated otherwise in the catalog.

Refunds of Student Account Credit Balance

Credit balances resulting from financial aid will be processed automatically after the add/drop period ends. Refunds will be issued through direct deposit, which means the funds will be sent directly to a student-designated bank account once the refund is processed. Students can sign up online with their bank information. Students who do not sign up for direct deposit will be issued a check that will be mailed to the local address the student provided in WaveNet.

To receive a refund for any other nonfinancial aid-related credit balance remaining on the student’s account after all charges and credits have been processed, the student must make a request for a refund, either in writing through a Pepperdine e-mail account or in person through the Office of Student Accounts.

Refund payments of credit balances will not be made until funds have cleared the bank and are showing on the student’s account; this includes credits from loan funds, checks, and dropped courses. If the credit includes a payment by check, there is a 10-day waiting period before the funds may be returned.
Students should consult the Office of Financial Aid concerning the effect of withdrawal or change in course load on financial aid. The student must pay all charges owed at the time of withdrawal or dismissal. Refund of Title IV funds awarded to the student will be paid back to the federal fund program at the time of withdrawal, drop, or dismissal in accordance with federal guidelines.

Financial Aid

Financial aid is available to students who are enrolled or planning to enroll and are United States citizens or permanent residents. Pepperdine University participates in federally administered student aid programs.

Graduate students are eligible to participate in the Federal Stafford Loan (Subsidized or Unsubsidized) program. Students must submit the 2010–2011 Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) along with other required documents. Students should apply as early as possible but not before January 1. Electronic filing is strongly recommended. For more information, please visit http://www.fafsa.gov. In addition, all students considering these federal loans are required to complete loan counseling online prior to receiving any funds.

Financial Aid Eligibility

The financial aid eligibility amount is determined by subtracting the student’s expected family contribution from the cost of attendance.

Determining Financial Need

Financial need is determined based upon the information provided on the FAFSA and need analysis. The need analysis formula is termed the federal methodology (FM) and is applied as set forth by the Department of Education each year. The federal methodology was passed by Congress under the Reauthorization of the Higher Education Act of 1965 as amended by the Higher Education Amendments of 1992 and 2008.

Electronic Financial Aid Eligibility Notification

Once the Office of Financial Aid receives the electronically transmitted FAFSA information from the federal processor, each student who has been admitted to the School of Public Policy is reviewed for financial aid eligibility. The Office of Financial Aid offers financial aid packages that include scholarships, Federal Work-Study, Federal Stafford Loans, Federal PLUS Loans for graduate students, and/or alternative loans. All financial aid eligibility notifications total the full cost of attendance. The financial aid eligibility notification serves as a listing of all of the financial aid that is being offered to the student. The financial aid eligibility notification can be found in WaveNet.

Expected Family Contribution

The expected family contribution (EFC) is the amount that the student is expected to contribute toward his or her educational costs. The EFC is federally regulated and is established by the income, asset, and household information provided on the FAFSA. All graduate and professional school students are considered independent for financial aid need analysis purposes. Therefore, students are not required to report parental information on the FAFSA.

Loan History

Graduates can locate their prior and current federal loans by accessing the National Student Loan Data System (NSLDS) at http://www.nslds.ed.gov. This Web site has information on federal loan amounts, outstanding loan balances, loan statuses, and disbursements. In order to access student records on the NSLDS Web site, students will need to provide their Social Security number, the first two letters of their last name, date of birth, and FAFSA PIN. The U.S. Department of Education provides graduates with a disclosure statement and repayment schedule that define the repayment terms of their loans.

Funds are distributed in two equal disbursements and are sent to the school electronically and deposited into the student’s account upon verification of enrollment for each semester covered by the loan. Any credit balance will be refunded to the student within the first two weeks of the start of each semester.

Many students rely on federal government loans to finance their education. These loans have low interest rates and do not require credit checks or collateral, with the exception of the Federal PLUS Loan for graduate students. Federal loans also provide a variety of deferment options and extended repayment terms.

The federal loan for students is called the Stafford Loan and is administered by the William D. Ford Federal Direct Student Loan Program (Direct Loan), which provides funding by the U.S. government directly to students and their parents.

Federal law requires both entrance and exit counseling for these federal loans.

Subsidized Federal Stafford Student Loans

Those students who qualify on the basis of financial need as determined by the FAFSA may borrow money for school through the Subsidized Federal Stafford Loan program. Interest is paid by the government while the student maintains at least half-time enrollment. No payments are made while a student is in school; however, six months after leaving school, dropping below half time, or graduating, the student will begin to make repayment on both the principal and interest. Subsidized Federal Stafford Loan borrowers are eligible for a fixed interest rate of 6.8 percent. The maximum amount a graduate student may borrow is $8,500 every two semesters. Federal law requires both entrance and exit counseling for these loans.

Unsubsidized Federal Stafford Student Loans

The Unsubsidized Federal Stafford Loan program is designed for students who generally do not qualify for other financial aid and who can meet the additional burden of loan payments. This loan also may serve as a supplemental source of money to students who are borrowing under the Subsidized Federal Stafford Loan program. The interest on the Unsubsidized Stafford Loan is fixed at 6.8 percent. If enrolled in an eligible program at least half time, borrowers may defer payment of the principal and pay the interest only or may defer payment and have the interest charges added to the principal balance (capitalized). The maximum annual award for the unsubsidized loan is $12,000.

Through a combination of Subsidized and Unsubsidized Federal Stafford Loans, graduate students may borrow up to $20,500 each two-semester period, with a maximum aggregate total of $138,500 for all undergraduate and graduate loans of which a maximum of $65,500 is in subsidized loans. These loans must be coordinated with other aid and cannot exceed the total annual education cost. Federal law requires both entrance and exit counseling for these loans.

Federal PLUS Loan for Graduate Students

The Federal PLUS Loan is a federal loan designed to assist graduate and professional students who are U.S. citizens or eligible non-citizens. Students may borrow the amount equal to the cost of attendance less all other financial aid. The Federal PLUS Loan has a fixed interest rate of 7.9 percent, with repayment beginning 60 days after the loan is fully disbursed. Once in repayment, students who are enrolled at least half time are eligible for an in-school deferment on the principal balance of the loan. The Federal PLUS Loan is credit based, but the government does not factor debt-to-income ratio; therefore, more students may be approved for the Federal PLUS Loan as opposed to private loans. The Federal PLUS Loan has the same repayment, deferment, forbearance, and cancellation provisions as the Federal Stafford Loan program. The Federal PLUS Loan may be consolidated with other federal loans. Federal law requires both entrance and exit counseling for this loan.

Alternative Loans

Alternative loans are private loans through lending institutions that are not part of the federal government programs. Alternative loans are more expensive than federal government-guaranteed loans and should be used only when all other options have been exhausted. Alternative loans are similar to any other credit-based loan, except that borrowers typically are allowed to defer the principal and pay only the monthly interest while the student is in school. Currently, there are a limited number of lenders that offer these loans. It is the student’s responsibility to compare the loan terms of each lender.

Federal Work-Study Program

The Federal Work-Study Program is a need-based, financial aid student employment program. The student works in exchange for pay. This is a financial aid award that affects other aid eligibility.

The Federal Work-Study Program was established to provide opportunities for students to engage in part-time employment in order to meet a portion of the cost of their education. Funds are used to pay a portion of the wages of enrolled students, with the work-study employer making up the difference. All students who wish to participate in the Federal Work-Study Program must agree to the terms, responsibilities, and policies that relate to this program.

Eligible students must be enrolled at least half time at Pepperdine University School of Public Policy. The student must be Federal Work-Study eligible as required by the U.S. Department of Justice, Immigration, and Naturalization Service. In addition, a Federal Work-Study allocation must be awarded and will appear on the electronic eligibility notification. Students may check with the Office of Financial Aid if they are unsure about their eligibility.

Outside Resources

Any outside resources such as Americorp, grants, scholarships, Veterans Administration educational loans, fellowships, and assistantships should be reported to the Office of Financial Aid as they may affect financial aid eligibility.

Scholarships

The Pepperdine University School of Public Policy awards a number of scholarships each year. These awards are made available through endowed funds, gifts from supporters and alumni, and allocation of University general funds (see partial list in this section). The Scholarship Committee awards scholarships based on merit, need, academic and professional experience, as well as standardized test scores.

To be considered for scholarship funds, students must indicate a desire for scholarship consideration on the Application for Admission Form. Awards are made throughout the admission cycle as admission decisions are made. The scholarship deadline for the fall semester is May 1. Early application is encouraged.

Any scholarship recipient must agree to the terms and conditions as set forth on the School of Public Policy Web site and adhere to the following guidelines:

1. The scholarship provided for each term requires that the student maintain a full load of 16 units of course work in the Master of Public Policy program. If circumstances should require a reduced course load, the scholarship amount will be reduced proportionately.

2. The student understands and agrees with University policy that the full award for any term will be rescinded in the event the student withdraws or is dismissed during that semester or fails to maintain a cumulative grade point average of at least 3.0 or higher, depending on the scholarship requirements. The student subsequently assumes full financial responsibility for tuition and fees as prescribed by the catalog.

3. The student understands that once the scholarship is rescinded, it will not be reinstated.

4. Certain information may be released to parties outside of the University who are providing scholarship assistance to Pepperdine students. The directory information released may include the student’s name, address, hometown, and academic major.

5. Students agree to keep the scholarship amounts awarded to them by the Scholarship Committee confidential.

6. Students agree to abide by the terms of the scholarship which may require a typewritten letter of appreciation or meeting with the donor for the scholarship.

Students can expect that the scholarship award per semester will remain effective the entire time they are enrolled in good standing in the Master of Public Policy program. Academic probation or other disciplinary action will jeopardize the student’s award. Students who fail to meet scholarship requirements may have their scholarships rescinded.

Associated Women for Pepperdine School of Public Policy Scholarship

Associated Women for Pepperdine is a group of Church of Christ women who raise funds each year to assist deserving students who are members of the Church of Christ. Recipients will be selected on the basis of financial need, merit, character, and church membership.

Janet O’Neil Buese Public Policy Scholarship

The Janet O’Neil Buese Public Policy Scholarship provides support for students at the School of Public Policy who are in good standing in all areas of the University.

Endowed Jewish Scholarship Fund

The Endowed Jewish Scholarship Fund will provide assistance to Jewish students in good academic standing who are pursuing a degree at the School of Public Policy.

Theodore J. Forstmann Scholarship

The Theodore J. Forstmann Scholarship embraces Forstmann’s long-standing commitment to education and his personal interests in the social and spiritual benefits of free markets and traditional values. Students will be selected on the basis of academic merit and articulation of thoughts through a required essay.

Foster S. Friess Scholarship Fund

The Foster S. Friess Scholarship Fund was established to help students who have demonstrated private-sector solutions to public challenges.

Bertha and John Garabedian Foundation Endowed Scholarship

The Bertha and John Garabedian Charitable Foundation Fund will provide assistance to qualified public policy students from Fresno, Kings, Madera, or Tulare counties in California.

Thomas P. Kemp Endowed Scholarship

Established in 2006 as a memorial legacy to Pepperdine Regent Thomas P. Kemp, this scholarship assists students at the School of Public Policy.
Seiji Masuda Endowed Scholarship in Public Policy for International Students
Established in 2004, the Seiji Masuda Endowed Scholarship in Public Policy for International Students was created to provide scholarships for international students from Malaysia, Indonesia, Thailand, Vietnam, Laos, Myanmar, Cambodia, and Brunei on the basis of merit and need.

William and Nancy Mortensen Endowed Minority Scholarship
The William and Nancy Mortensen Endowed Minority Scholarship will provide scholarship assistance to minority students in good academic standing.

Mike E. O’Neal Endowed Scholarship Fund
Established by Peter Cheung and Fred Prager, this endowed scholarship was created to aid deserving School of Public Policy students.

Allen and Marilyn Puckett Endowed Scholarship
The Allen and Marilyn Puckett Endowed Scholarship was established to provide support for students at the School of Public Policy who are in good standing in all areas of the University.

S. A. Enlightenment Scholarship
The S. A. Enlightenment Scholarship was established with a gift from the S. A. Enlightenment Foundation to provide scholarship support for students from predominantly Muslim countries.

Marilyn Dunton Simpson Endowed Scholarship
Established by Marilyn Dunton Simpson in 2009, this scholarship provides support for students at the School of Public Policy who are in good standing in all areas of the University.

Maurice H. Stans Endowed Scholarship Fund
Established in 1999 by the Stans Trust, the Maurice H. Stans Endowed Scholarship was created to provide support for African-American students—anyone born or adopted into the designated lineal ancestry who is not a minor.

Terralynn and Earl Swift Endowed Scholarship
Established in 2006 by Terralynn and Earl Swift, this endowed scholarship was created to provide assistance to students interested in studying how people from diverse cultures might discover common values in the context of global interdependency.

Flora L. Thornton Endowed Scholarship
Established by Flora L. Thornton in 2009, this scholarship is a merit-based academic scholarship for students at the School of Public Policy with demonstrated leadership potential who are in good standing in all areas of the University.

Lydell Ward Endowed Scholarship
Established by School of Public Policy Board of Visitors member Beti Ward, the Lydell Ward Endowed Scholarship is awarded to qualified female students pursuing a Master of Public Policy degree.
J. McDonald and Judy Williams School of Public Policy Scholarship

Established by J. McDonald and Judy Williams in 1999, this scholarship is designed to assist deserving School of Public Policy students who are members of the Church of Christ.

Graduate Assistantships and Research Assistantships

A limited number of merit-based graduate assistantships and research assistantships are available each year to students interested in working with faculty or administration in the School of Public Policy. Special consideration is given to students having completed one year with the School of Public Policy. Students must be in good academic standing, free of probation, to be considered or to maintain eligibility.

Associate Professor Michael Shires provides a compelling analysis of California’s state budget as part of the School of Public Policy’s Faculty Lecture Series.
The policies in this section apply to all School of Public Policy students. It is the responsibility of the student to be familiar with and to complete the requirements for the degree being sought. The staff of Pepperdine University will assist each student, but it is the student who must ensure that all degree requirements have been completed in the manner outlined in this catalog.

Academic Course Load

The Master of Public Policy requires 64 units of course work or four 4-unit courses each semester for two academic years (four semesters). The first year comprises primarily core courses and provides a foundation for the student's specialization courses, most of which are taken in the second year. A student can take a maximum of five consecutive years to complete the program. A student may not take more than 16 units of course work in a semester without petitioning to and being granted approval from the Office of the Dean (a minimum 3.5 grade point average is required). Should a student, for any reason, reduce his or her academic course load at the School of Public Policy, scholarship funds and financial aid will be adjusted proportionately.

Add/Drop Policy

Students may add or drop courses through the second week of the semester. (Consult the “Academic Calendar” in this catalog for exact dates.) Refunds for courses that are dropped within the add/drop period will be calculated based on the date the student drops the course. Requests for course changes will not be accepted by telephone or in class. Students are responsible to register themselves for classes before the add/drop deadline. Students who are waitlisted for a course should attend that course but should also note that attendance does not guarantee enrollment. Additions to a course with a waitlist will be considered only with written approval of faculty before the add/drop deadline.

Auditing a Course

Students may audit certain courses with the consent of the instructor, space permitting. An audited course appears on the student’s academic record but no grade is assigned. Degree requirements cannot be met through auditing. Students are not permitted to challenge any course for credit that has been audited previously. Course audits are subject to a $100 fee per course. In some instances, core courses may not be audited due to class size or to prevent disruption of the cohesiveness within a group of students.

Basis of Academic Credit

Academic credit at the School of Public Policy is granted in terms of semester units. One semester unit represents one 50-minute class period for each week of a semester.
Class Attendance

Attendance at every class and workshop meeting is expected of each student. Any exceptions to this rule must be made by the instructor, who is responsible for keeping attendance records. Attendance at the first class meeting is mandatory. Faculty may drop a student who does not attend the first class session.

Continuation of Academic Programs

Pepperdine University reserves the right to modify or discontinue any academic offering or degree program when demand falls below reasonable levels. In such cases, the University will make reasonable efforts to allow current students to complete the program or will assist in their transfer to other acceptable programs or institutions.

Course Numbering System

Graduate courses are numbered from 600–699. These courses are open to graduate students only.

Cross-Registration

Students who are not admitted to an established Pepperdine joint degree program may still enroll for a limited number of courses in the University's other four schools. Permission must be given by both the appropriate associate dean or designated administrator of the other school and the instructor of the course. Students should also have the permission of their academic advisor to ensure that the course taken will apply to their degree program. Students must complete the Cross-Registration Enrollment Form and may enroll only if space is available in the course.

Tuition for cross-registered courses will be charged under the following guidelines:

1. Courses Taken in a Joint Degree Program

Students admitted to University-established joint degree programs that are designed to yield degrees from more than one of Pepperdine's schools will be charged the flat-rate tuition of the school in which the student is carrying the greater number of units for that particular term. For example, a student enrolled in 12 School of Law units and 4 School of Public Policy units, where the units count toward the corresponding degrees (12 units for law and 4 units for public policy), would be charged the normal flat-rate tuition of the School of Law. In cases where the number of units is equal between the two schools, the lower tuition rate will be charged.
2. Courses Taken to Fulfill Degree Requirements
   If students receive approval to enroll in another school to complete the primary school’s degree requirements, the University will charge tuition based on the primary school of enrollment. For example, a student who enrolls in 14 units at the School of Law and 4 units at the School of Public Policy, where the School of Public Policy course would fulfill the School of Law degree requirements, would be charged the School of Law flat rate (10–18 units).

3. Courses Taken as Requirements for Two Separate Degrees
   When students pursue non-joint degrees and, upon completion, receive two or more separate degrees, they receive no unit reduction benefit. Tuition will reflect standard charges for each school.

4. Nondegree Units Taken as Electives
   Nondegree units will be charged at the standard rate for the school offering those courses. For example, a School of Law student enrolled in 14 law units and 4 public policy units that do not apply to his or her law degree will be charged the flat rate for the law courses (10–18 units) plus the 4 units at the per unit rate at the School of Public Policy.

   This policy assumes that flat-rate tuition is set at a maximum of 18 units for all schools offering the flat rate.

Enrollment Verification

Enrollment verification will not be processed by the Office of Student Information and Services until a student is officially registered. Future enrollment will not be verified. To obtain enrollment verification, send a written request, or the appropriate enrollment verification form(s), to the Office of Student Information and Services on the Malibu campus. The request must include the specific semester(s) of enrollment to be verified. Please do not mail verification requests prior to the first week of the semester. Additional information may be found at http://www.pepperdine.edu/registrar/verifications/.

Full-Time and Part-Time Student Status

Full-time enrollment is defined as 8 units and above per semester and half-time status as lower than 8 units per semester. This information is essential to the student who is receiving financial aid and is unable to maintain continuous enrollment for loan deferment purposes.
Grading at the Professional School Level

The quality of achievement in a course is measured as follows: For graduate students, “A” indicates superior work, “B” indicates average or satisfactory work, and “C” is the lowest acceptable grade.

- A (4.0) indicates outstanding achievement
- A- (3.7)
- B+ (3.3)
- B (3.0) indicates average or satisfactory achievement
- B- (2.7)
- C+ (2.3)
- C (2.0) indicates below-average performance
- C- (1.7)
- D+ (1.3)
- D (1.0) indicates serious deficiency
- D- (0.7)
- F (0.0) indicates failure

A “W” indicates a withdrawal from a course in good standing. A “WF,” withdraw failing, is recorded in cases where withdrawal has been approved for a student not doing passing work in the course. It is calculated as an “F” in the grade point average. A “WU,” indicating withdraw unofficially, is recorded for students who register but do not attend class. A “WU” is not calculated in the grade point average. (See “Withdrawal from Classes” for more information.)

For the internship, students receive the grade of “CR” (credit) in the event of acceptable work or “NC” (no credit) in the event of unacceptable work. Where a grade of “CR” is given, no grade point value is assigned. A grade of “CR” is assigned to indicate work equivalent to “A” or “B” and “NC” indicates “C” or lower. Credit/no credit grades are not computed in the overall grade point average.

A grade of “I,” indicating incomplete work, is assigned to a student who has attended class but who, because of an emergency, fails to complete the final examination or other assigned course work. All such courses must be completed within one semester from the date the grade of “I” is assigned. Failure to complete the course by the deadline will result in a grade of “F.” A time period of less than one semester may be assigned at the instructor’s request. If a student cannot complete the work in the semester (because of illness or other extenuating circumstances), the student may, with the instructor’s approval, file a petition for an extension with the Office of the Dean. This petition must be signed by the instructor and filed before the end of the semester.

Information for Veterans

Veterans, members of the armed services, and qualified dependents intending to use Veterans Benefits Administration benefits should contact the Office of Student Information and Services. Students intending to use veterans benefits should be aware of the following policies:
1. Students are responsible for notifying the Office of Student Information and Services immediately when they increase or decrease their unit load, withdraw, or take a leave of absence.

2. Students are responsible for paying their own tuition. The VA considers its payments a reimbursement, not a subsidy. It usually takes six to eight weeks from the time a student’s papers are processed by the Office of Student Information and Services until a check is received from the VA. Students who file their papers eight weeks before the beginning of the semester will be certified on an “intent to register” basis and can generally expect to have their checks by the second week of the semester after their enrollment has been verified.

3. All students using VA benefits must make satisfactory progress toward their educational objectives. In general, unsatisfactory progress is considered attainment of less than a “B” (3.0) grade point average for two consecutive semesters. Students who withdraw from the University will have their benefits terminated as of the beginning of the semester of withdrawal. If a student is dismissed for academic reasons, benefits will be terminated as of the date of dismissal. Students whose benefits have been terminated in this manner must be counseled by the school official before their benefits will be reinstated. Students who fail to complete all courses attempted will have their benefits adjusted.

4. Students who drop a course (or courses) during a period of enrollment will have their benefits adjusted accordingly, effective as of the beginning of the enrollment period, except in extenuating circumstances. Should a student not return for the succeeding term, benefits will be terminated as of the ending date for the previous enrollment period.

5. Students receive official grade reports at the end of each semester. These grade reports include all course work attempted, units completed, grades earned for the term, and cumulative and semester grade point averages. All academic credit is made a part of the student’s permanent file. Students wishing to review their academic progress records may do so in person by presenting proper identification to the Office of Student Information and Services.

Intent to Graduate

To graduate, students must apply online by the deadline printed in the academic calendar for the semester in which they plan to graduate.

Students shall not be allowed to participate in the commencement exercises if they have not completed all requirements for the degree, which includes completion of the compulsory internship.

Attendance at the graduation exercises is expected. Students who cannot attend graduation must notify the Office of the Dean at least two weeks prior to the graduation date.
All financial obligations with the library, Student Health Center, and Office of Student Accounts must be cleared prior to graduation.

Involuntary Military Service

Students who are on reserve in the military and are involuntarily called to active duty due to national emergencies may withdraw from courses and the University at any time during the term. Transcripts will be coded as “WM,” indicating withdrawal due to military service, for withdrawals that occur after the add/drop period. The student will receive a 100 percent tuition refund. No withdrawal fees will be charged.

If the involuntary withdrawal occurs during the period of a term where the grade of “I,” indicating incomplete work, could be granted, the student may request a grade of incomplete from the professor. All appropriate rules for incomplete courses apply with one exception: If the student is still on active duty when the expiration date to complete the course and revoke the incomplete occurs, the grade will default to “WM” (rather than “F”) and a full refund will be made to the student.

Furthermore, once students complete their involuntary tours of duty, upon request, Pepperdine will readmit them within the first 12 months following completion of their tours of duty without requiring them to reapply to the University. Students’ tours of duty time will not count as part of the time limit set for degree completion.

Along with a letter of intent of withdrawal, students must submit a copy of their military orders. For readmission, students must submit a copy of their discharge papers along with a request for readmission.

Registration

An official registration period is scheduled prior to the opening of each semester. Students will register online. After the official registration period, a late registration fee may be charged. Students who do not complete registration properly are not considered officially enrolled and will be denied all credit for the semester.

Eligibility to Register

A student is eligible to register if he or she is academically and financially in good standing. Students who have holds due to financial obligations should contact the Office of Student Accounts at (310) 506-4981.
Standards and Measurements of Achievement

Each course in the Master of Public Policy program has its own method for measuring achievement. At the beginning of each course, the particular standards of achievement and method of measurement will be explained to students. In addition, students must attend the Orientation Workshop. Admitted students may continue in the program as long as their academic performance and personal conduct meet the standards set. In any case, all course requirements must be completed within five years.

A student must maintain a cumulative grade point average of at least 3.0 throughout the program. All course grades assigned in the program are entered on the student’s official transcript and counted toward the cumulative grade point average. A core course in which a grade lower than “C-” is earned must be repeated before the student is allowed to graduate. A grade lower than “C-” earned in an elective course must be made up by repeating an elective course. Upon approval by the Office of the Dean, a course in which a grade lower than “B” is earned may be repeated, although a course may be repeated only once. In cases where a course has been repeated, both course grades earned remain on the transcript and count toward the cumulative grade point average.

If a student’s cumulative grade point average falls below 3.0, the student is placed on academic probation. While on probation, students will be limited in enrollment to a course load determined by the Office of the Dean. Students placed on academic probation shall be informed of any conditions for removing the probationary status.

Probationary status requires periodic reviews of the student’s records to determine suitability to remain enrolled and may include specific limitations to and restrictions of the student’s privileges, such as, but not limited to, a loss of financial aid support including any scholarships and loans, limitation on the number of courses taken in a term, restriction from taking a directed or independent study course or a course at one of the other schools at the University, and restriction from serving as a School of Public Policy graduate assistant.

A student is subject to academic dismissal and will be placed on academic probation for failure to earn at least a 3.0 grade point average in the first semester of enrollment, failure to achieve a cumulative grade point average of 3.0, earning a grade of “B-” or lower during a semester in which a student is on probation, earning a grade lower than “B-” in more than two courses, or earning a grade lower than “D” in any course.

Student Petitions

Petitions regarding grades, transfer of credit, or financial and other student issues must be made within one semester of completion of the course work on which the petition focuses to the assistant dean for administration at the School of Public Policy.
Students interested in taking a course in one of the other schools at Pepperdine University need to submit a petition to the Office of the Dean four weeks in advance of the start of the term in which they wish to take the course. Consideration will be given to students in good standing, free of academic probation or other disciplinary action, for upper-division or graduate-level course requests only. Students should be prepared to provide a copy of the course description, a copy of the course syllabus (if available), the number of units, the duration of the course, the price per unit, and the specialization track for which credit is requested, among other information. Students should consult the Office of the Dean for detailed information for impact on financial aid or scholarship funds.

To process petitions, students should contact the assistant dean for administration in the Office of the Dean.

Time Limit

All requirements for the degree must be completed within five consecutive years from the date upon which the student begins work at Pepperdine University School of Public Policy.

Transcripts of Academic Records

Transcripts are furnished upon payment of a fee for each transcript issued. Normally, official transcripts are delivered by mail. Official transcripts can be issued to the student only in a sealed envelope. If the seal is broken, the transcript ceases to be official. Alumni and current students may request official transcripts online through a service provided by the National Student Clearinghouse, which is accessible in WaveNet. Ordering transcripts online provides alumni and students the convenience of 24-hour access and the ability to track orders electronically. In addition to the online transcript-ordering service, Pepperdine alumni and students can request official transcripts by mail, fax, or in person. For more information, visit the transcript-ordering Web site at http://www.pepperdine.edu/registrar/transcripts. The request should show the student's full name and ID number, the program of enrollment, and the inclusive dates of attendance.

Transcript requests should be filed at the Office of Student Information and Services at least one day before the transcript is needed. Release of transcripts will be delayed during periods when grades are being processed at the end of each semester. No transcripts will be supplied for work taken at other institutions. Requests for partial transcripts will not be honored. The Office of Student Information and Services will not release transcripts unless the student has made satisfactory arrangements with the Office of Student Accounts. See the policy on withholding of transcripts, diplomas, and certificates in the “Security Interest in Student Records” section of this catalog.
Transfer to Other Universities

If a student plans to transfer to another university in order to graduate from that university, the student will need a transcript. If the student returns to the School of Public Policy, only 8 units of approved courses may be transferred. Upon written request, permission may be granted to attend summer school at an approved public policy school.

Withdrawal from Classes

A student may withdraw from any class without academic penalty from the beginning of the third week of a semester through the end of the eighth week. The permanent record will indicate a grade of “W” for such withdrawals. After the eighth week of a semester, a student may not withdraw from any course without obtaining written permission from the Office of the Dean. No petition for special withdrawal will be considered during or after the final week of the semester. Based upon the instructor's indication of the student’s academic status at the time of withdrawal, a grade of “WP” or “WF” will be assigned. Students who do not officially withdraw from their classes will automatically be assigned a grade of “F” by the instructor. No financial adjustment will be made for withdrawal after the seventh week of a semester. Withdrawals are official only upon timely notification to the Office of Student Information and Services and the School of Public Policy. Information on registration changes of any student receiving veterans' benefits or government financial aid will be forwarded to the Veterans Benefits Administration and the appropriate lending agencies whenever changes occur. The Veterans Benefits Administration is notified whenever a student receiving veterans' benefits allows a grade of “I” to lapse into the grade of “F.” Students may add or drop courses up to the end of the second week of classes.

Withdrawal from the University

Any student who leaves the University during a term, but after the add/drop period, must officially withdraw from all classes as well as notify in writing the School of Public Policy and the Office of Student Information and Services. A withdrawal fee of $150 will be charged. In addition, students will need to contact appropriate housing, telephone, and other personnel. Students with federal funding must also complete federal loan exit counseling. Only those students who follow these procedures and return all appropriate documents to the Office of Student Information and Services are considered to be officially withdrawn.
Public policy students attend classes in the Henry and Virginia Braun Center.
Students and prospective students should read this catalog carefully. The catalog serves as the official student handbook and, along with other published policies, describes student rights and duties with respect to the University. Enrollment constitutes an agreement by the student to abide by the rules, regulations, and policies of Pepperdine University.

Applicability of Catalog Provisions

The academic offerings and policies in this catalog are applicable only to students who enroll prior to the Fall 2011 semester and who attend Pepperdine University after August 22, 2010.

Campus Security Act

A copy of the Campus Security Act is available upon request from the Center for Human Resources or the Office of the Provost. Each year, the University publishes campus security policies and crime statistics to better inform its campus community. This information may be viewed at the following Web site: http://www.pepperdine.edu/publicsafety/department/safety/.

Code of Academic Ethics

Statement of Purpose

The Code of Academic Ethics is an integral part of the educational process. It makes possible an atmosphere conducive to the development of the total person through learning experiences. Since a person is more than intellect, learning is more than academic achievement. It includes achievement in all the qualities of an individual, whether intellectual, spiritual, ethical, emotional, or physical.

The Code of Academic Ethics provides among students, faculty, and administration a spirit of community where such development can take place. Furthermore, it creates a climate of mutual trust, respect, and interpersonal concern, where openness and integrity prevail.

This Code of Academic Ethics serves to enrich the educational process at Pepperdine and encourage the development of a healthy and safe learning environment. This will lead to a pervasive sense of pride for and loyalty to the School of Public Policy’s high standards of academic ethics, personal honesty, and spiritual values which imbue the school as part of a Christian university.

The code emphasizes the dignity and development of each individual. The code maintains free competition and independent intellectual effort, not tolerating dishonesty, cheating, or plagiarism in any form. If intentional acts of dishonorable conduct occur, the code outlines infractions and clear-cut procedures as well as sanctions to censure such activity.

However, to be effective, the code must be maintained by the community. This requires a genuine sense of maturity, responsibility, and sensitivity on the part of every member. In particular, each member of the School of Public Policy community is expected to pursue his or her academic work with honesty and integrity.

Scope

This code is limited to those areas of campus life that are directly related to academic ethics. Each student, upon matriculation to the School of Public Policy, will be expected to abide by the Code of Academic Ethics throughout the duration of his or her academic career at Pepperdine.

In completing each assignment, each student is expected to have abided by the principles of the code and may be asked to sign a pledge to this effect. Students may be asked to sign such a pledge at the beginning of each course.

Infractions

Within the Code of Academic Ethics, sanctions are imposed upon those who participate in dishonest academic behavior. Participation includes acting dishonestly oneself as well as tolerating dishonest acts by others.

Three basic categories of dishonest behavior are noted below, along with several examples of each. This is not an exhaustive list of examples nor an exhaustive list of categories of dishonorable behavior.

1. Misrepresentation of academic work:
   - The employment of another’s statements or thoughts without giving that source appropriate credit.
   - Unauthorized multiple submission of papers.
   - Submitting for credit a purchased paper.
   - Unauthorized submission of an assignment prepared by another person (or persons).

2. Interference with fair competition and with independent intellectual pursuits:
   - Giving, receiving, or using unauthorized aid on examinations.
   - Colluding with others when independent work is specified.
   - Deliberately defacing or removing course materials and thereby making them unavailable to others.

3. Solicitation of dishonorable behavior:
   - Offering to buy or sell unauthorized aid on examinations, papers, or grades.
   - Offering or accepting bribes related to academic work.

Sanctions

First-offense sanctions may include the following:

1. Failing grade for the test and/or assignment or reduction of final grade by one letter, whichever is the greater penalty (in such cases, the “F” will count as “0” in the tally).

2. Failing grade for the course.
3. Immediate suspension from the School of Public Policy (minimum one semester, duration to be determined).

4. Immediate and permanent dismissal from the School of Public Policy.

Second-offense sanctions will likely result in immediate and permanent dismissal from the School of Public Policy.

Exceptions: Whether the first or second offense, a student shall receive an “F” for the course and immediate dismissal if he or she is found to have stolen, bought, sold, or used an examination or paper procured in these ways; to have submitted a paper that another person has written; or to have been involved in impersonation for purposes of stealing.

Any sanction given to a student will be put on permanent file with the Office of the Dean and the Office of Student Information and Services.

In addition to the above sanctions related to students, if the judicial process concludes that a professor has breached the Code of Academic Ethics by purposely offering unfair advantage to a student or failing to report a violation of the ethics code, this fact will be reported to the dean of the School of Public Policy.

Judicial Procedures

The judicial procedures are designed with the following purposes in mind:

1. To provide a positive direction in cultivating academic ethics.
2. To ensure a thorough and fair investigation of pertinent evidence.
3. To maintain strict confidentiality.
4. To allow for an appropriate channel of appeal.

Such purposes are to be attained through the efforts of the Academic Ethics Committee.

Reporting

An alleged infraction is to be reported to the judicial administrator of the Academic Ethics Committee. The accused shall be granted up to five days to prepare his or her case as determined by agreement with the judicial administrator. The accused has the right to consult with an advisor from within the School of Public Policy community.

Composition of Committee

The Academic Ethics Committee will consist of one Pepperdine graduate student, one public policy staff member, and one public policy faculty representative.

Selection of the student representative will be made by judicial administrator and may be considered from faculty recommendations.
Functions
1. The Academic Ethics Committee will provide a forum before which students and faculty can bring individuals who have allegedly breached the Code of Academic Ethics. Records of such hearings will be kept in a secured file in the Office of the Dean.

2. The Academic Ethics Committee will decide on the guilt or innocence of such individuals. In cases of guilt, the Academic Ethics Committee will decide on the appropriate sanction.

3. In certain cases the Academic Ethics Committee will function as a clearinghouse for faculty to register in writing such cases as the following:
   - Cases wherein the student has admitted guilt and wherein the penalty accorded would be a sanction.
   - Cases wherein the faculty member confronts the student. In such cases the faculty member, after discussion with the student, will file a formal charge with the Academic Ethics Committee, and this charge will be kept on permanent record. Any student having a charge filed against him or her in this manner has the right to appeal the professor’s decision to the judicial administrator of the Academic Ethics Committee. Any professor assigning a sanction to a student will advise him or her of the right to appeal to the Academic Ethics Committee. If the Academic Ethics Committee receives any other written charges against the same student at any time during that student’s career at the School of Public Policy, a hearing will be called and the student could be dismissed from the school (under the sanctions for a second offense).

4. The Academic Ethics Committee will confer with the individuals found by the committee to be guilty about their opportunity to appeal to the dean. The dean will notify the Academic Ethics Committee of any decisions made on cases that have been submitted to the Office of the Dean.

Voting
All three of the Academic Ethics Committee members must be present for a vote to be called. Specific sanctions will be decided by majority vote.

Note: The Academic Ethics Committee hearings are not court of law proceedings and should not be construed to be subject to courtroom technicalities.

Appeals Process
Procedures for appeals of Code of Academic Ethics violations are the same as for Student Code of Conduct violations. Consult the “Student Code of Conduct” section of this catalog for more information.
Changes in the Code

Any alterations in this code must be initiated by the Academic Ethics Committee or the dean and must carry their corporate unanimous vote.

For additional information, contact the Office of the Dean at (310) 506-7490.

Code of Ethics

Introduction

Pepperdine University is a Christian university committed to the highest standards of academic excellence and Christian values. Members of the Pepperdine University community—faculty, staff, students, administrators, members of the Board of Regents, members of the University’s advisory boards, and volunteers—are responsible for maintaining the standards of the institution and of the various communities in which they live. We value integrity, honesty, and fairness and strive to integrate these values into our daily practices.

Our ethical expectations are found in Holy Scripture, the University Mission Statement, the founding vision of George Pepperdine, and the University Affirmation Statement. Holy Scripture provides the ultimate source for our ethical standards, including the two great commands taught by Jesus: the duty to love God and love one’s neighbor as one’s self (Matthew 22:37–40).

In this spirit, we commit ourselves to the highest standards of ethical conduct. We act with integrity, we treat others with respect and dignity, we carefully steward the University’s resources, we avoid conflicts of interest or commitment, we maintain confidentiality, and we comply with legal and professional obligations. We are individually accountable for our own actions, and we are collectively accountable for upholding these standards of behavior and complying with all applicable laws, policies, standards, and regulations. While human and therefore fallible, we constantly strive to meet our ethical expectations. Moreover, because the Pepperdine community is composed of many distinct constituencies, we understand that, beyond the general ethical principles outlined in this document, we may be subject to additional rules of conduct specific to our respective roles within the community.

Acting with Integrity

We seek to be people who are honorable, forthright, and upright at all times. Our commitment to integrity demands more than mere satisfaction of legal and ethical obligations, although we comply with the law and conform to the highest standards of ethical conduct. Our commitment to integrity means that we actively discern what is right from what is wrong, that what we do flows directly from who we are, and that we seek consistency between our inner self and our outward conduct. We value people, we speak the truth, we have the courage of our convictions, and we keep our commitments. We do not condone any form of dishonesty—such as fraud, theft, cheating, or plagiarism—as described more specifically in student, faculty, and staff handbooks and policies.
Treating Others with Respect and Dignity

Members of the community are committed to principles of equality and fairness. We follow the profound truth found in the Golden Rule, “In everything do to others as you would have them do to you” (Matthew 7:12).

We do not unlawfully discriminate on the basis of any status or condition protected by applicable federal or state law. Consistent with our affiliation with the Churches of Christ and our faith heritage, we do seek to hire and promote persons who support the goals and mission of the University including, but not limited to, those who are members of the Churches of Christ.

We respect the inherent worth of each member of the community. We do not engage in any forms of harassment of others. Those in positions of authority, including administrators, supervisors, faculty members, and student leaders, exercise their authority fairly and appropriately.

Other expectations about how we treat others with respect and dignity can be found in University policies and in each school’s faculty and student handbooks.

Stewarding the University’s Resources

We are good stewards of the University resources entrusted to us, and we prepare accurate and clear reports about those resources. University resources are reserved for business purposes on behalf of the University. We exercise reasonable judgment in the use of University resources, acting with care and prudence. We do not use University resources for personal gain.

We prepare correct and clear financial records and research reports. All entries in University books and accounts accurately reflect each transaction. In reporting on the University’s resources, we do not hide, conceal, or mislead; and we promptly report such misconduct when it is discovered.

Avoiding Conflicts of Interest and Commitment

We do not have direct or indirect interests or commitments, financial or otherwise, which conflict with the proper discharge of our duties to the University. The primary professional allegiance of all full-time employees lies with Pepperdine University and the advancement of its mission. We do not solicit or accept any gift, service, or favor that might reasonably influence the discharge of our duties or that we know or should know is being offered with the intent to influence our official conduct. We do not accept other employment or engage in business or professional activities outside of the University when such work might reasonably cause real or apparent conflicts of interest or conflicts of commitment. We do not transact business in our official capacity with any business entity of which we are an officer, agent, or member or in which we own a substantial interest without the explicit prior knowledge and approval of the appropriate senior University officer. We disclose potential conflicts of interest to the appropriate supervisor or officer as soon as possible after we realize that a conflict may have arisen. Additional information is located in the University conflicts of interest policy.
Maintaining Confidentiality

We observe and respect the confidentiality rights of all other members of the community, and this duty continues even after we are no longer affiliated with the University. This right of confidentiality applies to all academic, financial, health-related, personnel, or other non-public information protected either by law or by University policy. However, the right does not preclude the consensual release of information or the disclosure of information within the University when there is a legitimate need for its disclosure. E-mail or other uses of the University’s computers or computer network are for business purposes and are not presumed confidential. Additional information is located in the University’s Computer and Network Responsible Usage Policy.

Complying with Legal and Professional Obligations

We comply with all state and federal laws and conform to the highest standards of professional conduct. We transact University business in compliance with all applicable laws, regulations, and University policies and procedures. We do not misrepresent our status or authority in our dealings with others. To the extent that we belong to professions that are governed by standards specific to the profession (such as attorneys, psychologists, or certified public accountants), we adhere to such professional standards. We conduct ourselves in accordance with professional principles for scholarly work, including upholding academic codes of conduct and professional standards for research.

Reporting Violations of the Code

In order to maintain the integrity of the community, we report observed or suspected violations of this Code of Ethics with a spirit of fairness, honesty, and respect for the rights of others. Those who report alleged misconduct and those against whom allegations are reported are afforded all rights provided by University policies as well as all applicable state and federal laws. Those who are found to have violated this code will be subject to appropriate disciplinary action, up to and including expulsion, termination of employment, or termination of relationship. Information about reporting violations of this code may be found in the University policy “How to Report a Violation of the Code of Ethics.”

Conclusion

We are governed by an ethos of care and respect, virtues that transcend the provisions of this code. We are called to something greater and nobler than mere compliance with the law or a written code of ethics. We are called “to live a life worthy of the calling [we] have received . . . , bearing with one another in love” (Ephesians 4:1–2). We are called to “dedicate ourselves anew to the great cause of beautiful Christian living” (George Pepperdine’s Dedicatory Address). We are called, ultimately, to lives of service (University Affirmation Statement). As the University motto instructs us: “Freely ye received, freely give.”
Computer and Network Responsible Usage Policy

Purpose

Pepperdine University provides access to computing and network resources in order to support its instruction, research, and service missions; administrative functions; and student and campus life activities. All such use shall be ethical and consistent with the University’s mission. Any other uses, including uses that jeopardize the integrity of the Pepperdine network, the privacy or safety of other users, or that are otherwise illegal, are prohibited.

Applicability

This policy applies to all users of University computing and network resources, whether affiliated with Pepperdine or not, and to all uses of those resources, whether on campus or from remote locations.

Conditions for Use

Users of Pepperdine University computer and network resources must

- Follow all applicable federal, state, or local laws.
- Follow all relevant University rules, regulations, policies, and procedures, including the information technology (IT) use policies and procedures published for specific systems.
- Actively maintain the security of personally owned and University-assigned computers.
- Report privacy, security, or policy violations to the Information Security Office.

Prohibitions

Users of Pepperdine University computer and network resources must not

- Utilize any identity or account not specifically assigned to the user.
- Hinder, monitor, or intercept another user’s network traffic.
- Disclose, destroy, or capture personal, confidential, or restricted data.
- Use resources for commercial purposes or personal financial gain.
- Use resources for unauthorized access of any system or network.

Peer-to-Peer and File Sharing Notice

Users must not engage in the unauthorized copying, distributing, altering, maintaining, or transmitting of copyrighted materials, information, software, music, or other media.

Security and Privacy

Users’ University computer and network passwords must conform to IT’s published complexity and length requirements and must not be shared with any other person, used in non-University accounts, or otherwise disclosed. Passwords must be changed immediately if disclosed or compromised.
The University employs various measures to protect the security of its information resources. Users should be aware that their uses of University computer and network resources are not private. While the University does not routinely monitor individual usage, the normal operation and maintenance of the University’s computing resources require backup, logging of activity, monitoring of general and individual usage patterns, and other such activities that are necessary for information security and the rendition of service. In addition, the University reserves the right to review, monitor, and/or capture any content residing on, or transmitted over, its computers or network at its sole discretion. The University reserves the right to limit access to its computers or network and to remove or limit access to material residing on its computers or network.

The most current version of the Computer and Network Responsible Usage Policy and any technical requirements and guidelines related to this policy are published at http://services.pepperdine.edu/it/policies.

Nonacademic Student Grievance Procedure

The purpose of this Nonacademic Student Grievance Procedure is to provide for the resolution of student grievances, including allegations of sexual harassment, discrimination, and the denial of reasonable accommodations to persons with disabilities. This policy is not applicable to situations where another policy with a right of appeal applies including, but not limited to, the discipline of a student by the administration.

This procedure is designed to allow students to address complaints in a fair, consistent, and objective manner. Any act of reprisal by a University employee or by one acting on behalf of the University, including the intimidation of a grievant, respondent, or witness during the pendency of an investigation, will result in prompt disciplinary action.

This procedure shall not be used to bring frivolous or malicious complaints. If a complaint has been made in bad faith, disciplinary action will be taken against the person bringing the complaint.

Before initiating a formal grievance, a student should discuss the matter in dispute with the person against whom the student has a grievance and seek a mutual resolution of concerns. The student may be encouraged to return to this informal level of resolution at any time during this procedure. It is the University’s belief that most grievances can and will be resolved at this level.

If an informal resolution does not result, the student must submit a complaint to the grievance officer to initiate a formal grievance. Initially the 1 The assistant dean for administration shall serve as the grievance officer concerning complaints about a faculty member or other employee. The assistant dean for administration shall serve as the grievance officer concerning complaints about another student. The dean of the subject school shall serve as the grievance officer concerning complaints about the assistant dean for administration and, in this instance, the provost will serve as the reviewing officer if the case involves a request to appeal the grievance officer’s decision.

student’s concerns may be communicated orally; however, they must be in writing before any review or other action takes place. This written complaint should be submitted as soon as possible after the student knows of the subject problem. The complaint must specify the University or School of Public Policy policy, procedure, or norm violated and specifically set forth all relevant factual details.

The grievance officer shall read the complaint and determine whether the complainant’s allegations warrant implementing the remainder of the procedures outlined below. If, for example, the allegations in the complaint, even if true, would not constitute a violation of a University policy, procedure, or norm, then the grievance officer should inform the student in writing that the student’s allegations are not subject to the grievance process.

If the grievance officer determines that the allegations in the complaint do warrant further investigation and consideration, then the grievance officer shall forward a copy of the complaint to the person against whom the complaint is made (“respondent”) and, if discrimination is alleged, the University equal opportunity officer. This shall be done as soon as possible, but in no event later than 21 calendar days after the grievance officer receives the written complaint.

The respondent shall be given 14 calendar days from receipt of the complaint to return a written response to the grievance officer. Necessary extensions may be granted at the discretion of the grievance officer.

The grievance officer has the discretion to initiate a reasonable investigation into the matter. The scope of any investigation shall be in the sole discretion of the grievance officer. The investigation may include, but is not limited to, meeting with the parties, talking with witnesses, and reviewing any supporting documents.

A student may elect to withdraw a complaint at any time; however, the University reserves the right to investigate all complaints where necessary to protect the interests of the University community.

If the grievance officer desires, he or she may appoint an ad hoc committee to assist in the investigation of the complaint and/or for advice concerning the handling of this matter.

Within a reasonable time, the reviewing officer shall make a decision based on the written complaint, response, and any other information the grievance officer determines is relevant.

Any party may submit a written request for appeal to the dean of the School of Public Policy (“reviewing officer”) within 14 calendar days from the date of the decision. The request for appeal must specifically set forth all grounds for appeal. The nonappealing party must be given the opportunity to respond in writing to the request for appeal.

The reviewing officer shall be limited to addressing only the following questions:
1. Did the grievance officer consider all the important and appropriate facts in the investigation of this matter?

2. Did the student prove by a “preponderance of the evidence” (that is, more likely than not) that the person against whom the student has a grievance in fact violated a University policy, procedure, or norm or otherwise engaged in any unlawful or illegal activity?

3. Was the process carried out in a fair manner?

4. Was the decision one that a reasonable person might have made?

5. Was the grievance officer biased?

Within a reasonable time, the reviewing officer shall make a final decision based on the written complaint, the written response, the grievance officer’s written decision, the written request for appeal, and any written response to the request for appeal. The decision of the reviewing officer shall be final. The reviewing officer will provide notice to all parties that a decision has been reached and, where discrimination is alleged, to the University equal opportunity officer.

All written decisions made and materials produced in connection with a grievance conducted under this procedure shall be retained by the grievance officer for at least one year from the date that the final decision was issued.

Nondiscrimination Policy

Pepperdine University does not unlawfully discriminate on the basis of any status or condition protected by applicable federal or state law in the administration of its educational policies, admission, financial aid, employment, educational programs, or activities.

The University’s equal opportunity director is responsible for the coordination of nondiscrimination efforts and the monitoring of employee and student complaints alleging discrimination. The Equal Opportunity Office is located in the Charles B. Thornton Administrative Center in Malibu and may be reached at (310) 506-4208. Grievances should be directed to the appropriate school or department, and complainants are encouraged to exhaust institutional procedures before seeking relief outside the University.

Provisions Subject to Change

The provisions of this catalog, including rules of conduct, academic offerings, policies, procedures, and all charges, are subject to change by Pepperdine University after reasonable notice. It is anticipated that costs will increase in future years due to inflation, strengthened academic and extracurricular offerings, or other factors. Pepperdine University will limit changes during an academic year to those that the University believes are reasonable and/or necessary. Continuous scrutiny and development of the program may result in adjustments to the content, sequencing, and number of courses offered in the current or future academic year.

Right to Appeal

The University has initiated and implemented procedures for appeals by students with the intent of assuring fairness and objectivity. The procedures are not designed to incorporate all of the due process safeguards that our courts of law require. The purpose is to provide a system that will represent “fairness and the absence of arbitrariness.”

The University will make every effort to see that appeal procedures are clear to the students and that their avenue of appeal is not burdensome.

Security of Student Belongings

The University is not responsible for loss of, theft of, or damage to students’ personal possessions. Theft and security concerns should be reported immediately to the Department of Public Safety. Students are responsible for their possessions while on University property and are encouraged to lock their rooms when they leave and to utilize laptop locks and other devices to safeguard their property while using University facilities. Residence hall lobby and suite doors must remain closed and locked at all times. Additionally, students are encouraged not to leave valuables unattended and unsecured. The University encourages students to obtain their own theft and casualty insurance. Such coverage may exist as part of parents’ homeowner insurance policies or may be added for an additional fee. It is also recommended that students record the serial numbers of electronic devices such as laptop computers and digital cameras. Residents are encouraged to take valuables home with them during University breaks.

Sexual Assault Policy

As stated in our mission, Pepperdine is a Christian University committed to the highest standards of academic excellence and Christian values. One of these values is the recognition that every person is created in the image of God, is of infinite value, and, therefore, should be treated with dignity and respect. Sexual assault, in all forms, violates the sanctity of the human body and spirit and will not be tolerated within our community. Sexual assault is a violation of the University’s Code of Conduct as well as a violation of the law. In an effort to reduce the risk of sexual assault occurring among its students, the University provides awareness and prevention programming. These outreach efforts are coordinated through the Counseling Center. For information, call (310) 506-4210 or visit http://services.pepperdine.edu/counselingcenter/sexualassaultresources.

The Web site includes additional resources and frequently asked questions about sexual assault. In the tragic event that a sexual assault does occur, the University takes the matter very seriously. A student who is found to have committed sexual assault on or off campus is subject to immediate suspension, expulsion, or dismissal from Pepperdine. A student wishing to officially report such an incident may do so by contacting the Office of the Dean at (310) 506-7490 or the Department of Public Safety at (310) 506-4442. Anyone with knowledge about a sexual assault is encouraged to report it immediately.

The complete Sexual Assault Policy including definitions, resources, reporting, and disciplinary proceedings may be found by accessing the Student Services section in Wavenet, then clicking on Academic Resources and Academic Policies.

Sexual Harassment Policy

Pepperdine University reaffirms the principle that its students, faculty, and staff have a right to be free from sex discrimination in the form of sexual harassment by any member of the University community.

Sexual harassment is defined as an attempt to coerce an unwilling person into a sexual relationship; or to subject a person to unwanted sexual attention; or to punish a refusal to comply; or to create a sexually intimidating, hostile, or offensive working, living, or educational environment. This definition will be interpreted and applied in a manner consistent with accepted standards of mature behavior, academic freedom, and the mission of the University.

Complaints about sexual harassment will be responded to promptly. The right to confidentiality of all members of the University community will be respected in both informal and formal procedures, insofar as possible. This policy explicitly prohibits retaliation against individuals for bringing complaints of sexual harassment. Formal procedures will not be initiated without a written, signed complaint. An individual found to be guilty of sexual harassment is subject to disciplinary action for violations of this policy, consistent with existing procedures.

Smoking Policy

Research demonstrates that tobacco smoke is a health hazard to both smokers and nonsmokers. According to the Surgeon General, cigarette smoking is the leading preventable cause of illness and premature death in the United States. Nonsmokers who are regularly exposed to second-hand smoke are also at increased risk of illness. In the interest of creating a safe and healthy environment, Pepperdine University has adopted the following policy.

This policy applies to all University facilities on the Malibu campus. All persons using the facilities of the University are subject to this policy.

1. Smoking is prohibited inside any area of any University-maintained building, including faculty/staff offices and student residential facilities. Except as otherwise designated, this includes hallways, breezeways, patios, balconies, doorways, elevators, and loading docks.

2. Except as otherwise designated, smoking is prohibited outdoors:
   - Near any undeveloped brush area.
   - Within 20 feet of the entrance to any campus building or ventilation system.
   - On the following lower campus plazas: Joslyn Plaza, Adamson Plaza, and the plaza located in front of the Payson Library main entrance.
   - At spectator sports or other outdoor campus events.

3. Smoking is prohibited in any vehicle owned, leased, or operated by the University.

4. The sale, distribution, or advertisement of tobacco products is prohibited on campus.

Smoking-cessation programs are available to faculty, staff, and students through the University’s Wellness Program. For more information, please call (310) 506-7592.

All members of the University community share in the responsibility of adhering to and enforcing this policy. The success of this policy depends upon the thoughtfulness, consideration, and cooperation of both smokers and nonsmokers.
Introduction
Each student is responsible for knowing and adhering to this Code of Conduct. While the policies and code outlined in this catalog provide students an effective set of guidelines for personal conduct, the University retains the right to instate additional policies and regulations or to modify existing ones as needs may dictate.

General Conduct Expectations
Pepperdine University's foundation of the Christian faith as the basis of its expectations of student conduct requires that all students maintain the highest standards of personal honor, morality, and integrity at all times. The University reserves the right to refuse admittance to or dismiss any person who violates these principles.

In general, a student's actions off campus are subject to sanctions of civil or criminal authorities; however, whenever its interests as a University community and/or the pursuit of its objectives are adversely affected, the University may take disciplinary action independently of other authorities.

Misconduct Subject to Disciplinary Action
The following examples of misconduct are not inclusive but are intended to give a student an idea of the types of behaviors that may result in disciplinary action:

1. Violation of published University policies, rules, or regulations. This includes, for example, the policies and regulations specific to the residential community; the policy on alcohol and other drugs; and the policies on sexual assault, sexual harassment, and vehicles.

2. Violation of federal, state, or local law on University premises or at University-sponsored or supervised activities.

3. Dishonesty in any form including, but not limited to, plagiarism; cheating on assignments or examinations; knowingly furnishing false information on University records; and forgery, alteration, or misuse of documents, records, or identification cards.

4. Failure to comply with written or verbal directives of University officials or law enforcement officers acting in performance of their duties and/or failure to provide identification to these persons when requested to do so.

5. Disruption or obstruction of teaching; research; administration; disciplinary proceedings; other University activities, including its public-service functions on or off campus; or other authorized non-University activities when the activities occur on University premises.

6. Actions or language that constitute unlawful harassment, threats, intimidation, stalking, or hate violence directed toward a member of the Pepperdine faculty, staff, student body, or a visitor to the campus.
7. Sexual harassment and assault. See the policy statements on sexual harassment and sexual assault for more information.

8. Sexually compromising acts on campus or at University-sponsored events. The final determination of whether an act is sexually compromising will be at the discretion of University officials.

9. Exhibition or distribution of material or representations deemed to be obscene or contrary to the moral standards and/or mission of the University.

10. Soliciting or advertising without prior approval from the Student Activities Office or the Office of the Dean.

11. Drunkenness or disorderly, lewd, or indecent behavior.

12. Promotion, distribution, sale, possession, or use of alcohol or narcotics or other controlled substances on campus or at University-sponsored events regardless of the student's age. See the Substance Abuse Policy for more information.

13. Smoking anywhere on campus other than nonrestricted outdoor areas and designated individual residents' rooms. Smoking is not permitted in any other University building.

14. Participation in student organizations not approved by the University.

15. Possession and/or use of all types of weapons and ammunition including, but not limited to, firearms, air and spear guns, knives, martial arts weapons, bows and arrows, swords, paint pellet guns, and explosives of any type. All individuals in possession of self-defense items, including pepper spray, must comply with applicable California state law regarding training and permit to use.

16. Unauthorized possession, duplication, or use of keys to any University premises or unauthorized entry to or use of University premises.

17. Attempted or actual theft of and/or damage to property of the University or property of a member of the University community or other personal or public property.

18. Theft or other abuse of computer time including, but not limited to,
   - Unauthorized entry into a file to use, read, or change the contents or for any other purpose.
   - Unauthorized transfer of a file.
   - Unauthorized use of another individual’s identification and password.
   - Use of computing facilities to interfere with the work of another student, faculty member, or University official.

19. Misuse of the disciplinary procedures including, but not limited to,
   - Failure to respond to the summons of a judicial body or University official.
• Falsification, distortion, or misrepresentation of information before a judicial body.

• Disruption or interference with the orderly conduct of a judicial proceeding.

• Institution of a judicial proceeding knowingly without cause.

• Attempting to discourage an individual’s proper participation in, or use of, the judicial system.

• Attempting to influence the impartiality of a member of a judicial body prior to and/or during the course of the judicial proceeding.

• Harassment (verbal or physical) and/or intimidation of a member of a judicial body prior to, during, and/or after a judicial proceeding.

• Failure to comply with the sanction(s) imposed by a judicial body.

Violation of Law and University Discipline

If a student is charged only with an off-campus violation of federal, state, or local laws, but not with any other violation of the Code of Conduct, disciplinary action may be taken and sanctions imposed for grave misconduct that demonstrates flagrant disregard for the University community. In such cases, no sanction may be imposed unless the student has been found guilty in a court of law or has declined to contest such charges, although not actually admitting guilt (for example, “no contest”).

University disciplinary proceedings may be instituted against a student charged with violation of a law that is also a violation of the Code of Conduct. Disciplinary proceedings may be carried out prior to, simultaneously with, or following civil or criminal proceedings off campus.

Reporting Misconduct

Anyone may report a violation of the Code of Conduct by contacting one of the following offices:

- Department of Public Safety (310) 506-4442
- Office of the Dean (310) 506-7490
- Housing and Residence Life (310) 506-4104

Normally, the person reporting the violation will be asked to complete a written report form. Reports should be submitted as soon as possible after the event takes place.

Anonymous reports may be made on the Crime Tips Hotline by calling voice mail at extension 1234 (on campus) or (310) 506-4001 (off campus) and then dialing 4751.

Students living in the residence halls also may notify their resident or student advisors.

For any campus emergency, call extension 4441 or (310) 506-4441.
Authority and Responsibility for Student Discipline

Judicial proceedings may originate from the Office of Housing and Residence Life and/or the Office of the Dean. Violations that occur in the residential community will be investigated by the Office of Housing and Residence Life. Violations occurring outside the residential community will be investigated by the Office of the Dean. Public Safety works in cooperation with these offices in the reporting of violations and the conducting of investigations.

The Office of Housing and Residence Life has established judicial procedures outlined in this section of the catalog including appearances before the Disciplinary Action Committee. Judicial procedures followed by the Office of the Dean are also outlined in this section of the catalog. The Student Affairs Office has established judicial procedures related to student organizations, which are outlined in the Student Organization Handbook and can be located at http://studentorgs.pepperdine.edu/icc/content/student_organizations_handbook.pdf.

The dean will have the authority to make disciplinary decisions including dismissal from the University. The dean is the final avenue of appeal for students who have received sanctions from the Office of Housing and Residence Life.

Disciplinary Procedures

Before a sanction is imposed, the student will be given reasonable notice as to the specific conduct in which the student is alleged to have engaged and for which the student is subject to discipline. The student will be given an opportunity to respond and will be informed of the basis for any disciplinary action and the procedure for making an appeal. Judicial decisions shall be made on the basis of whether it is more likely than not that the accused student violated the Code of Conduct.

Conduct Violations within the Residential Community

All individuals entering the residential community are responsible for adhering to University policies. This includes resident students, commuter students, and non-students. Resident students may be held responsible for the activity or substances found in their rooms, whether or not they are present at the time of violation. The activity occurring within a room is considered under the radius of control of the resident. All students are responsible for educating their guests on the policies of the University.

Violations of any University policy occurring in the residential community will be reported to the Office of Housing and Residence Life on an Observation Report. It is the student’s right to receive a copy of the Observation Report. Violations also may be reported to the Office of Housing and Residence Life by the Department of Public Safety.

Disciplinary Action Committee

The Disciplinary Action Committee (DAC) consists of Office of Housing and Residence Life staff, resident advisors, and student representatives.
The DAC meets weekly to review conduct violations occurring within the residential community. After reviewing an Observation Report and the student’s disciplinary history, a sanction is recommended. The student is then sent a letter indicating the charge and recommended sanction and is invited to set up an appointment with the DAC to discuss the case. This meeting provides the student with an opportunity to respond to the charges. Students charged with serious violations that might result in dismissal from residential housing or the University may be summoned to meet with the dean or director of the Office of Housing and Residence Life. Following the meeting, the DAC, dean, or director of the Office of Housing and Residence Life will then make a decision regarding the charge, and the student will be notified in writing of the final decision. If a student chooses not to meet with the DAC, the recommended sanction will be imposed based upon the available evidence.

Students may appeal the decision of the DAC to the director of the Office of Housing and Residence Life. Decisions made by the director of the Office of Housing and Residence Life that result in sanctions of dismissal from housing or the University may be appealed to the Office of the Dean at the School of Public Policy.

In accordance with University housing policy, students required to live on campus who are dismissed from University housing will be dismissed from Pepperdine University. Any student dismissed from the residential community prior to the end of the contractual period may be responsible for any remaining monetary charges as well as ineligible for reimbursement of any charges already paid.

Conduct Violations Outside the Residential Community

Disciplinary proceedings for students accused of misconduct occurring outside the residential community are conducted by the dean. Normally, a disciplinary proceeding begins with a written communication from the Office of the Dean requiring the student to attend an administrative hearing to respond to a specified charge. In rare cases, the proceeding may begin with an oral communication requiring the presence of the student at an administrative hearing. The hearing may be held before the dean, dean of student affairs, faculty advisor, or a designee of the dean. This person will conduct an investigation of the charges.

At the administrative hearing, the student is informed of the evidence that led to the charges against him or her and asked to respond. The student may offer his or her own evidence. This includes the student’s own appearance at the hearing and may include the appearance of other witnesses on his or her behalf and any written submission or relevant documents the student may wish to submit. Although students are always free to consult with an attorney or other advisor, they may not have an attorney or advisor present during an administrative hearing.

After the Office of the Dean has heard the student and others and considered all of the evidence, it reaches a determination and notifies the student in writing of that decision. If the student is found guilty of misconduct, a
Disciplinary Sanctions

Violation of University policies for personal conduct may result in the imposition of one or more of the sanctions listed below. Sanctions which may be imposed are not limited to those listed. In certain limited situations, University officials may impose a sanction but suspend or postpone its actual implementation.

Sanctions affecting the conduct of students are based on general principles of fair treatment. Sanctions will take into account the intent of the accused, the effect of the conduct on the victim and/or University community, the student’s disciplinary history, whether sanctions such as education and community service are likely to change the student’s conduct, and the student’s needs and prospects for improvement. While attempting to be consistent in its disciplinary decisions, the University also seeks to be fair and sensitive to the facts and circumstances of each individual case. Disciplinary action may involve, but is not limited to, one or a combination of the alternatives listed.

Sanctions that may be imposed include the following:

- Censure—Oral or written warning for conduct unbecoming of a Pepperdine student.
- Reprimand—Written warning that continuation or repetition of misconduct may result in a more severe sanction.
- Housing and Residence Life Probation—A status which indicates a student’s right to live in University housing is in jeopardy.
- Probation—A status which indicates that a student’s relationship with Pepperdine University is tenuous and that his or her records will be reviewed periodically to determine suitability to remain enrolled. Specific limitations to and restrictions of the student’s privileges may accompany probation.
- Fines—Payment of charges for violation of regulations. These charges will be added to a student’s account.
- Loss of Privileges—Such loss may include financial aid; eligibility to represent the University officially on athletic teams or performing groups; seeking or holding an elected student office; eating in the cafeteria; participating in the Pepperdine international programs; and use of specific University facilities, equipment, or services.
- Restitution—Requirement to pay for the repair to and/or replacement of damaged property. Failure to pay such charges may result in additional sanctions (including, but not limited to, denial of reenrollment or refusal to release official transcripts and records).
• Educational Sanctions—For example, community service, essay-writing assignment, attendance at a seminar, or other discretionary sanction as deemed appropriate by the sanctioning official.

• Dismissal from University Housing—Loss of privilege to live in University housing. Students who lose the privilege to live on campus for disciplinary reasons will be held responsible for the remainder of their housing contract.

• Suspension—Separation of the student from the University for a specified length of time.

• Dismissal—Separation of the student from the University on a permanent basis. In certain cases a dismissed student may, after an extended period of time, petition the University for readmission.

When students are dismissed or suspended for disciplinary reasons, there will be no refund of tuition or room charges for the semester and all financial aid will be cancelled. Upon permanent separation from University housing, students may apply to the Office of Housing and Residence Life for unused board charges.

Sanctions for Student Organizations

The following sanctions may be imposed upon groups or organizations: censure, reprimand, probation, fines, loss of privileges, restitution, educational sanctions, and deactivation. Deactivation includes loss of all privileges, including University recognition, for a specified period of time.

Interim Suspension

In certain circumstances, the dean or a designee may impose a University or residence hall suspension prior to a meeting with a judicial body. Interim suspension may be imposed only (1) to ensure the safety and well-being of members of the University community or preservation of University property, (2) to ensure the student’s own physical or emotional safety and well-being, or (3) if the student poses a definite threat of disruption of or interference with the normal operations of the University. During the interim suspension, students will be denied access to the residence halls and/or the campus (including classes) and/or all other University activities or privileges for which the student might otherwise be eligible, as the dean or the designee may determine to be appropriate.

Appeals Process

The University has implemented procedures for student appeals with the intent of assuring fundamental fairness. Students who believe they were not treated fairly in the disciplinary process or that the sanction imposed was unreasonable can submit a written appeal. Residential students who have received sanctions from the DAC may appeal to the director of the Office of Housing and Residence Life. Students who have received sanctions from the director of the Office of Housing and Residence Life may appeal to the dean of the School of Public Policy.

The appeal letter must specifically set forth all grounds for appeal (that is, what actions or failure to act deprived the student of fundamental fairness or what circumstances make the sanction fundamentally unreasonable). The appeal letter must be submitted within seven days of the issuance of the sanction. The judicial party originating the decision must be given the opportunity to respond in writing to the appeal letter.

Generally, the appellate process does not require a hearing nor does it require the dean to make any personal contact with either the student or the original judicial body. Where personal contact with either party appears necessary to the dean, such contacts can occur in the absence of the other party.

Where it appears that the sanction raises an issue of particular importance to the school or University, the dean may, but is not required to, convene an ad hoc appeals committee to assist in making a recommendation to the dean regarding the appeal. The dean will designate the committee members. The dean may participate in all formal discussions between committee members. The committee will consist of at least three total representatives, at least one each from the faculty, student body, and staff. In making its recommendation, the committee shall consider and review only the appeal letter and response, and it shall limit itself to addressing only the following questions:

1. In the investigation of this matter, did the decision maker consider all the important and appropriate facts?
2. Was it proven by a “preponderance of the evidence” (that is, more likely than not) that the student in fact violated a University policy, rule, guideline, code, or expectation or otherwise engaged in any unlawful or illegal activity?
3. Was the judicial process carried out in a fair manner?
4. Was the sanction one that a reasonable person might have made?

The ad hoc appeals committee shall submit its recommendation to the dean based on its conclusions to the above inquiries. The dean shall not be bound by the committee’s recommendation.

In the event that an ad hoc committee is not convened, the dean’s decision regarding the appeal will be based on the four questions outlined above. The dean may affirm, reverse, or modify the sanction. The dean may also return the case to the initial decision maker for further consideration. The dean’s decision shall be final and effective immediately.

Interpretation and Revision

Any questions of interpretation of this Code of Conduct should be referred to the assistant dean for administration of the School of Public Policy. The code will be reviewed every year. In the revision of this Code of Conduct, the Office of the Dean gratefully acknowledges the use and adaptation of model codes of student conduct published by the National Association of College and University Attorneys in Student Disciplinary Issues: A Legal Compendium.
Student Records Policy

The Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974, also known as the Buckley Amendment or FERPA, provides, generally, that (1) students shall have the right of access to their educational records, and (2) educational institutions shall not release educational records to nonschool employees without consent of the student, subject to the exceptions provided by law. “Students” as used in this notice includes former students but does not include applicants who have not attended Pepperdine University.

Right of Access

With a few exceptions provided by law, students at Pepperdine University may see any of their educational records upon request. Access must be granted no later than 15 days after the request. Students further have the right, under established procedures, to challenge the factual accuracy of the records and in some instances to enter their viewpoints in the records.

Students may waive their right of access to recommendations and evaluations in the cases of admission, applications for employment, and nominations for awards. Pepperdine University may not require students to sign a waiver of their right of access to their records, but students and prospective students should be aware that users of recommendations and evaluations made without a signed waiver may discount their helpfulness and validity.

Disclosure of Student Records

With several exceptions provided by law, Pepperdine University cannot release information concerning students to prospective employers, government agencies, credit bureaus, etc., without the written consent of the student. Students and alumni applying for jobs, credit, graduate school, etc., can expedite their applications by providing the University with written permission to release their records, specifying which records and to whom the release should be made. The student’s written consent is not required for the disclosure of grades, disciplinary action, or other information to parents of students who are dependents for federal income tax purposes. Parents requesting information may generally be granted access upon submission to the University of a signed statement or other evidence of federal income tax dependency.

The University has designated the following categories of information as “directory information,” which may be released to the public without notice or consent of the student: student’s name; address; telephone number; major field of study; participation in officially recognized activities and sports; weight and height of members of athletic teams; dates of attendance; degrees, honors, and awards received; enrollment status; classification; thesis titles/topics; photograph; e-mail address; and the most recent previous public or private school attended by the student.
The student may request that certain categories of directory information not be released to the public without the student’s written consent. Such requests shall be submitted in accordance with the Student Records Policy of the University.

Further Information
This notice is not intended to be fully explanatory of student rights under FERPA or California law. Students may obtain copies of the official Student Records Policy, which contains detailed information and procedures, upon request to the Office of Student Information and Services, Pepperdine University, 24255 Pacific Coast Highway, Malibu, CA 90263-4382. Copies also may be obtained online at http://www.pepperdine.edu/registrar/content/srp_revised03_04.pdf.

Right to File a Complaint
Any student alleging failure of the University to comply with FERPA may file a complaint with the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act Office (FERPA), Department of Education, 330 Independence Avenue, SW, Washington, D.C. 20201. Students are encouraged to utilize the internal University grievance procedures to resolve complaints prior to contacting outside agencies.

Substance Abuse Policy

Purpose
In keeping with the mission of the University and its commitment to provide an alcohol- and drug-free environment, the University has formulated the following policy regarding alcohol and drugs.

Applicability
The policy applies to all students.

Definitions
Substance means any drug (including alcohol) that has known mind- and/or function-altering effects on a human subject, specifically including psychoactive substances and including, but not limited to, substances controlled or prohibited by state and/or federal law. Alcohol in this context means beer, wine, and all forms of distilled liquor or any beverage, mixture, or preparation containing ethyl alcohol.

Prohibitions
All University students are required to be completely free of illegal drugs. The University prohibits the illegal use, possession, transport, manufacture, distribution, promotion, or sale of drugs, drug paraphernalia, or look-alike (simulated) drugs and the unauthorized use or possession of alcohol while in any facility controlled by the University or as part of any University-sponsored activity.
Students may not be on University-controlled property or engage in any University activity while under the influence of any drug, alcohol, or other substance that will in any way affect their alertness, coordination, or response or affect their safety or the safety of others.

Health Risks

The University is very concerned about harm to students using or abusing drugs and alcohol. All drugs are toxic or poisonous if abused. Health risks of drug abuse include, but are not limited to, sleep disorders, confusion, hallucinations, paranoia, deep depression, impotence, liver and kidney damage, cardiac irregularities, hepatitis, and neurological damage. Abuse of either alcohol or drugs during pregnancy increases the risk of birth defects, spontaneous abortion, and stillbirths.

Alcohol is a depressant. It depresses the central nervous system and can cause serious, irreversible physical damage. Excessive drinking damages the liver, resulting in cirrhosis. Chronic alcohol abuse also causes hypertension; cardiac irregularities; ulcers; pancreatitis; kidney disease; and cancer of the esophagus, liver, bladder, or lungs.

Student Assistance

Any individuals within the University community who have developed an alcohol or drug dependency and who so identify themselves to faculty or administrators will be afforded reasonable consideration so long as they continue appropriate efforts to achieve and maintain sobriety. Such individuals have the right to expect that such disclosures will be held in confidence and not relayed to another who does not have a legitimate need to know. Facilities of the University will be made available to alcohol and drug recovery self-help groups that serve the University community and the general public for the conduct of their meetings. Confidential counseling and treatment are available to students through the Counseling Center on the Malibu campus and the Community Counseling Clinics at the West Los Angeles, Encino, and Irvine Graduate Campuses or by referral to appropriate agencies off campus.

Legal Sanctions

Local, state, and federal laws establish severe penalties for unlawful possession of illicit drugs and alcohol. These sanctions, upon conviction, may range from a small fine and probation to imprisonment for up to one year or a $1,000 fine, or both. It is especially important to note that federal laws have increased the penalties for illegally distributing drugs to include life imprisonment and fines in excess of $1 million.
Disciplinary Action

1. Any student found supplying alcohol or drugs on campus or unlawfully supplying alcohol or drugs to another member of the community or the public at large will be subject to immediate suspension leading to dismissal.

2. In the case of a student residing on campus found by a resident assistant, public safety officer, or other University official to be in an intoxicated state: Upon a first offense a report will be entered, the individual will be returned to his or her residence, a residence hall employee will be alerted to the condition of the student, and the individual will subsequently be reminded of the University Substance Abuse Policy. The student will be contacted by an appropriate University official to determine whether personal counseling is advisable or whether disciplinary action is necessary.

• If a student is unruly, disruptive, or destructive, a report will be entered and the student confined to his or her residence until sober or detained.

• A student found in two or more incidents to be under the influence of drugs or alcohol may, at the discretion of University officials, be suspended for up to one year, or in cases where no improvement is evident, dismissed from the University.

• Any student who encourages another to consume alcoholic beverages or any other substance as a means to induce that individual to engage in behavior that would otherwise be against that person's will is subject to dismissal from the University.

3. Nonresident students found to be under the influence of alcohol or drugs will be detained until safe transport to their residence can be arranged. Patterns of intoxication and behavior problems among nonresident students will be treated in the same way that similar problems among resident students are treated.

4. It will be the policy of the Department of Public Safety to prevent any intoxicated individual from operating a vehicle on campus or leaving the campus by operating a vehicle.
University Policy on Hazing

Pepperdine University is dedicated to a hazing-free environment. Hazing is prohibited by state law and University policy. All students and members of campus organizations are required to fully comply with California’s Penal Code requirements on hazing and the University’s regulations prohibiting hazing. The California Legislature recently enacted a law that makes hazing a potential felony, punishable with up to one year in prison, $5,000 in fines, and liability for injury to any persons harmed. Liability for hazing also extends to student organizations and not just to those who directly participated in the hazing acts. The law defines hazing as any method of initiation or pre-initiation into a student organization or student body, regardless of whether the organization or body is officially recognized by an educational institution, that is likely to cause serious bodily injury to any former, current, or prospective student of any school, community college, college, university, or other educational institution in this state, Penal Code section 245.6(b).

Pepperdine University prohibits any recognized student organization from engaging collectively or individually in hazing. Disciplinary action at the University level is considered independent from other court proceedings and may be instituted against a student also charged in civil or criminal courts based on the same facts that constitute the alleged violation of the Code of Conduct. For more information on hazing, visit http://www.stophazing.org or contact the student organizations coordinator in the Student Activities Office.

Use of the Name of Pepperdine University or the School of Public Policy

Students in the School of Public Policy, either individually or collectively, shall not, without the written consent of the proper authorities, use the name of Pepperdine University or the School of Public Policy in connection with any activity of any kind outside of the regular work of the school. Violation of this rule may result in disciplinary sanctions.
