The next three questions are intended to assist you and your faculty advisor in assessing what you have learned from your internship experience. Your responses will NOT be made publicly available.

1. Lesson Learned: Describe the single most important lesson you learned from your internship experience. How will this lesson inform your career decisions? Make sure you provide enough detail and context that your advisor can understand how and why you learned what you did. This answer your not exceed one page.
2. Course Application: Think back on your internship from the perspective of your courses during your first year in the School of Public Policy. Identify two (2) significant instances where you applied specific aspects of your coursework or found substantial relevance. Describe these instances in some detail and discuss how your training influenced your decision-making or ability to analyze and select alternatives. This section should not exceed two pages.
3. Leadership Example: Think about a leader you had the opportunity to observe in depth during your internship. It need not be your direct supervisor or anyone in the chain of command. Was the person an effective leader? Why or why not? What attributes of the person cause you to characterize him/ her as a leader? What would have made him/ her more effective – and why? Make sure you make a clear distinction between management and leadership. In what ways did the leadership style influence the organization and its effectiveness? This section may be as long as necessary.
